WHOLE WHITNEY FAMILY.
 Cliff, Lake County, Or., Aug. 20.
 Editor Medford Mail:
 After an absence from home for the past three weeks, your correspondent will endeavor to make good and record a few items from this part of man's earthly heritage, viz., southern part of Eastern Oregon. Having a yearning to work in the hay field myself and better half and the boys (us four and no more), hied ourselves to Summer Lake, 60 miles away.
 Arriving at the Harvey ranch, which is under lease by G. J. Woodard, we were distributed for work as follows: Wife was installed as assistant cook and dishwasher, one boy was put to manipulating a hay brick, the other as one of two net setters, and the old man set to doing stunts as "pull-up boy." We were told this latter job was a snap, but after nine days of continuous service the old man concluded there was no snap about it. He rather thought that setting out apple and pear trees for John Owell and others in the Rogue River valley was a better snap than this was. Everybody is familiar of course with the song, "Everybody Works But Father," but in this case "father worked too." Well, see, I am digressing somewhat as to the general line of news.
 Harvesting is about over within our immediate vicinity. All grain crops with us are cut for hay. Rye is the principal one, but numerous pieces of wheat, oats and barley were cut, and while the yield was light, the quality was good.
 New arrivals are daily coming in to Northern Lake county, and many are filing on homesteads. A large amount of sage brush land is being cleared off and this fall will see a large acreage of grain sown. While the crops this spring were cut short by the late frosts, farmers will not hesitate because of these failures, but will enlarge their field of operations.
 The past ten days have been very hot and sultry. Indications for rain are showing up for two or three days past, and we are in hopes we will be blessed with a good shower. Our last rain fell about ten days ago.
 F. N. WHITNEY.
