"BABE" GARVIN A FIGHTER.

"Babe" Garvin failed to appear before Recorder Benj. M. Collins yesterday morning, and thereby hangs a tale. Garvin is a targe-man and that is evidently what gained him the name of "Babe." He is a miner and works out in the vicinity of Phoenix when he is not celebrating in Medford, which happened to be the case Monday night.

Garvin arrived in town Monday noon and lost no time in hunting up a few friends in order to get them to keep him company, and then proceeded to fill up on a certain brand of whisky known as "Fighting," and soon after was declaring that he could lick his weight in wildcats.

John Findlay took exception to Garvin's remarks and right then was sorry that he spoke, for when he recovered from the cyclone which struck him he had his eyes in mourning and looked as if he had been run through a threshing machine. After that Garvin was given a wide berth and walked up and down opposite the depot with a chip on his shoulder and offering $5 to any one who would do him the favor of knocking it off.

Yesterday morning Chief of Police Shearer heard of the doings and lost no time in gathering the "Babe" in. Most of the fight was out of him by that time and he begged hard to be allowed to go to his home in the hills. The chief finally allowed him to stay out until the court opened by making a deposit of $10.

He did so, and the last seen of him was when he was hiking up the track as if his life depended on the time he made.

Hugh Martin was on deck when his name was called, and after admitting that he was in a bad state of intoxication the night before, proceeded to tell his little story. It appears that he arrived in this bustling city a few weeks ago. He was a stranger and they took him in. His roll of hard-earned money consisted of the sum of $135 and now he was without a single cent.

Chief Shearer escorted him around to where he had blown most of it in and Martin pleaded with them to put up the amount of his fine. And they did so—nit.

Recorder Collins thought the man had a good enough lesson to last him for a while, any way, and allowed him his liberty on condition of making the usual promise, which, sad to relate, is broken once in a while.

ED ROBINSON, THE PEDDLER.

Ed Robinson, who follows the exalted profession of a peddler, labors under the impression that he has a kick coming, and claims that when he gets to be worth a million dollars he will have every policeman in Medford fired from the force. Of course all his trouble was brought upon by the officers of the law. It is the same in almost every case of the kind, and according to the stories told by those who are arrested, the police go about like roaring lions, seeking whom they may devour.

"No rogue e'er felt the halter draw With a good opinion of the law," Ed Robinson drives around with a team consisting of a mule and another animal which he calls a horse, but in all fairness it must be recorded that he treats his team well. This was the case yesterday when he decided to let them have a real good rest. The trouble was that he selected for the resting place the corner of Seventh and Central streets, and by so doing blockaded the crossings.

Chief of Police Shearer poked his pride and drove the team and the occupant of the wagon to the police station. Here he unloaded his load with the load and then put the team up at a livery stable.

When brought before Recorder Benj. M. Collins, Ed stated that he was not drunk. "Perish such a thought," he dramatically exclaimed, as he held one hand on his heart and waved the other aloft. "No, your honor, I was just sick at my stomach; that was all, and if you don't believe it I will prove it by my team."

Taking into consideration the fact that the team aforesaid assisted somewhat in the arrest, the recorder let the old man off with a fine of $5. He paid part and agreed to pay the remainder on the installment plan.

What must we expect when as good an authority as the Chicago News says: "If anybody else writes a novel on Chicago society, let us hope it will deal with the deodorized kind."

KILLED IN COLLISION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 9.—Phillip M. Lillienthal, president of the Anglo-California bank of this city, and one of the most prominent financiers of the Pacific coast, died here this evening from injuries received when an automobile in which he was returning from the Gaas-Nelson fight collided with a horse and cart.

The banker, who is an extremely heavy man, either jumped from the machine when he saw the collision was coming or was hurled to the ground by the sudden stopping of the car, striking on his head and shoulders. One side of his head was found to be terribly crushed when he was picked up, and several ribs had been fractured by the force of his fall. He died in the car on the way to the hospital.

Mr. Lillienthal attended the fight in company with Gregory Wilenkin, an agent at Washington of the Russian government during the Russo-Japanese war, and Ignace Warschansky of St. Petersburg. On his return from the arena while the car was making good speed the chauffeur decided to turn down a cross street leading directly to the heart of the city.

As he swung the car around the corner a young horse attached to a heavy sulky was coming from the opposite direction and became frightened and pranced in front of the car. The chauffeur brought the machine suddenly to a stop, but not quickly enough to avoid a collision, and the horse was pinned on the fenders of the automobile. Chauffeur Wilenkin and Warschansky jumped out at once and helped the driver to get the sulky righted and the animal on its feet. It was after this had been done that Lillienthal's absence was noticed. On looking around his friends discovered the banker lying in the road some 15 feet from the machine, unconscious and with his face and head covered with blood. The injured man was hastily placed in the automobile and all speed made to the nearest hospital, but Lillienthal expired during the journey.

RATHER DIE THAN STUDY.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 9.—Rather than go to school, Winifred Thayer, a 14-year-old schoolboy, shot himself with suicidal intent, using a small-caliber rifle. The stock of the gun had been sawed off, apparently with the purpose of making the weapon handier in the deed of self-destruction.

This is the note his mother, who lives on Knox avenue, in Spokane, found yesterday morning shortly after 8 o'clock:

"Mother—I do not want to go to school, so I am going to shoot myself. I am too helpful to go to school. I would rather get a job and go to work. WINIFRED."

His mother summoned a physician, and after the bullet had been extracted the boy said to the physician: "I did it on purpose, and I do not want to get well."

The bullet entered the body a trifle below the heart, was deflected downward and backward toward the spine, and lodged under the skin of the back.

The chances for the boy's recovery are good.

MEETS DEATH THE SAME WAY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Two women, one grieving over the death of her favorite son, the other despondent because of illness, leaped to death yesterday from windows in their homes. Mrs. Mary Ann Reisch jumped from the dining-room window and suffered injuries from which she died shortly afterward.

Her son, Joseph, aged 25, was drowned while on his vacation about two weeks ago, and since that time the mother had been inconsolable over his loss. Although she was constantly watched, she finally eluded the vigilance of her family and ended her life.

The other suicide was Miss Lillian Reynolds, aged 50 years, for many years assistant matron at the Messiah Home, in West Chester. She hurled herself from a fourth-floor window of an apartment house in East Seventeenth street and was instantly killed. For years Miss Reynolds had suffered from nervous troubles.

EASTERN STAR RECEPTION.

Reames Chapter, O. E. S., opened the social season among the fraternal organizations with a reception to Mrs. Jennie Peames, W. G. M. of Klamath Falls, who is paying her official visit of inspection to the chapters in her jurisdiction. After a vacation of two months the attendance was largely representative, speaking well for the growth and prosperity of the order. The floral decorations under the direction of W. H. McGown were very pleasing in effect and the lunch up to the standard set by the Eastern Star ladies.

A large number of out-of-town guests were present, among whom were Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Burnett, Miss Mollie Britt and Miss Dora Harbaugh of Jacksonville; Mr. and Mrs. Meyers, Mrs. Hatfield, Mr. and Mrs. Robnett of Central Point; Mrs. Tracey, Mrs. J. A. Whitman of New York and Mrs. Radell of Los Angeles.

NEW FALL LINES ON DISPLAY

We want to thank the ladies of Medford and vicinity today for our success. This is your store in almost every sense of the word. We started in to sell everything in our lines at prices which would be fair and honest to you and ourselves. We feel that you have appreciated our efforts to show good, durable, lasting, as well as pleasing, styles in all lines by your liberal patronage.

THIS FALL our stocks will be triple what they were last Fall and the assortments correspondingly greater. One thing we have striven for every day since we opened is this: To give our customers a little more value for their money than they ever got before and we have succeeded almost every time.

ANOTHER THING we have always done is to stand ready and willing to make good on anything anybody buys here that does not prove all we claim for it and all you think you should get for the amount of money paid.

ANY PERSON who ever bought an article here that did not prove satisfactory can get the money or another article instead for the asking.

IT'S UP TO YOU FRIEND to trade at the safe store. We invite you here to look and don't urge you to buy when you come. You are always welcome.

THE NEW SUIT STYLES Sizes 14 to 44 for Misses and Ladies

The Malleable Girl

calls attention to one of the distinctive features of her favorite RANGE. It's the three-ply construction. This one feature is found only in her Malleable Range and has saved thousands of dollars to range users. It saves fuel because it holds in all the heat; it saves time because you can cook quicker and better. It means long life to the range.

A sheet of pure asbestos mill-board is placed between two sheets of steel. The inner sheet of steel keeps it from peeling off. It will last forever. This cannot be said of the range where the asbestos is placed on the inside of the outer wall without any protection whatever.

One Malleable will outlast two to one of any other make. There are many other distinctive features of

THE MALLEABLE RANGE

The Malleable Man will tell you all about them.
SEE HIM AT THE STORE OF

The Nicholson Hardware Co.

ANY TIME FROM
SEPTEMBER 7 to 12

The Malleable girl will serve you with three-minute biscuits and delicious hot coffee and present you with a beautiful cook book and a useful souvenir

With each range purchased during this exhibit, we will give free a set of high grade cooking ware
