KILLS WAYWARD SON.

Artist's Awful Crime Results From Mistake in Facts.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Truly shocking is a tragedy enacted this week at Gap, where M. Disdie de Roussel, a painter and a knight of the Legion of Honor, killed his own son. The young man, who had recently returned from military service in Tonkin, was very wild and eccentric, and is said to have constantly threatened to kill his mother and sisters who were in awful dread of him. A few days ago he was in such a state of delirium through drink that neighbors had to be called in to help him up. The direct cause of the tragedy was a quarrel on Wednesday evening when just before the dinner hour he announced that he had invited several of his old comrades in Tonkin to the meal. His mother having remarked that he had left her no time for preparations he flew into a violent rage and with terrific threats proceeded to sharpen his knife.
Once more he was shut up in a room with the assistance of the neighbors, but he jumped out of a window and went to the house close by where he thought his mother had taken refuge. Hearing of this, his father armed himself with a revolver, followed and met him as he was being led back to his home by a local journalist.

Thinking that he must have killed his mother, the old man fired at him and when he had fallen on the ground put the muzzle of the revolver to his head and lodged two bullets in it before the journalist could interpose.

TAKE DEW BATHS.

Wealthy Mrs. Shaw Tells Something About Sun-Worshippers.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Ellen M. Shaw of Lowell, for whose property a conservator is being asked by her niece, Mrs. Mabel Dutton, of Dorchester, on the ground that Mrs. Shaw was about to give her estate to the Mazdaznan society of Sun-Worshippers, resumed her testimony in the Probate court today. She readily admitted that she took dew baths, that she ate no meat, or fish, and that she had an altar in her bedroom. She described the altar as a little stand with many pictures and candles on it. She declared that all she gave to the Mazdaznan temple was $500, and denied that she was converting her property into cash. Mrs. Shaw admitted that she wore a sort of robe, but said it was merely a morning gown. Regarding Dr. Haulsh, she said that she did not know who he was or where he came from.

The case was then adjourned until next week in Lowell. On Tuesday the court and the counsel in the case will visit the Mazdaznan temple in that city.

10,000 MURDERS A YEAR.

Time Halt Was Called on Private Vengeance in America.

(Philadelphia Telegraph.)
Ten thousand homicides a year! Ten thousand lives taken annually in passion or revenge, and legal retributions so few that they are hardly worth recording! Let a man but have the means to hire a smart lawyer, and he is as good as free. Justice seems to have lost her eye bandage, and to be as easily dazzled by money as the rest of a money-mad land. Every acquittal of a murderer invites another murder, and the chain of homicide is constantly lengthened. Still worse, the whole people grow accustomed to manslaughter and murder ceases to excite the horror and antipathy that naturally belong to it. The nose first tolerates the smell of blood, and ends by sniffing its odor eagerly.
America is coming to the parting of the ways. One road leads to savagery; the other to civilization. A halt must be called upon private vengeance. The public has been too lenient, too sentimental. Justice, inexorable, impartial, must replace the mock trials that go on. The chicanery of the law must be put a stop to.

ELECTION BETTING BEGINS.

About $4000 Wagered So Far in Portland.

PORTLAND, Or., Oct. 23.—That portion of Portland's sporting gentry who only wager on elections is beginning to get into action and during the last two weeks something like $4000 has been posted on the presidential election. In spite of the fact that in the east the odds on Taft have been hovering around 3 1/2 and 4 to 1, here in the city the prevailing odds have been 2 to 1, with an occasional small bet of 3 to 1.
The largest wager made so far was a bet that was made by two prominent business men as the result of a political talk during luncheon. While the talk was tropical the Taft man wagered $3500 against $1750 that Taft would defeat Bryan. The next largest bet that has reached the ears of the gossips was $220 against $150. The rest of the money has been wagered in small bets of $100 and less and most of this has been bet on Taft's majority in Oregon. One or two foolish Bryanites have figured that Bryan will not be beaten by more than 12,000, but the most of the money has been placed that Taft will get between 15,000 and 19,000 over Bryan.

ABOUT THE VOTE.

It Will Take 242 Electoral Votes to Elect a President.

In 1896 McKinley polled a total popular vote of 7,111,601, while Bryan's total was 6,509,052.
John M. Palmer, who ran for president on the Gold Democratic ticket, got 124,645, while Joshua Levering, who ran on the Prohibition ticket that year, received a popular vote of 132,007.
In 1900 McKinley received a total popular vote of 7,220,007, with a plurality of 860,961. Bryan's total was 6,360,016. He gained very nearly the number of votes which in the previous election went to Palmer and Buckner, the candidates on the Gold Democratic ticket. The other candidates in 1900 received votes as follows:
John G. Woolley, Pro. 297,368
Eugene V. Debs, Soc. Dem. 94,552
Wharton Barker, Pop. 50,192
Joseph F. Malloney, Soc. Lab. 33,450
Roosevelt got a popular vote in 1904 of 7,620,337, with the phenomenal plurality of 2,541,298. Parker receiving a total of 5,079,041 votes less than the total number of votes polled by Bryan in either 1896 or 1900. But Roosevelt's tremendous and widespread personal popularity must be taken into consideration in accounting for the sudden drop in the totals polled in the two preceding elections. It is safe to say that if Judge Parker had had any other opponent but Roosevelt against him on the Republican side he would have received more votes than Bryan did in either of his campaigns, owing to the support which conservative Democrats, alienated by Bryan's radical tendencies, would have given him. As it was, a large part of this conservative Democratic element, together with a great many independent voters, voted for Roosevelt. As a consequence, the latter's plurality was, numerically, the largest, and, based on the number of voters, the second largest ever received by a candidate for president of the United States.

The other candidates in 1904 received votes as follows:
Eugene V. Debs, Soc. Dem. 402,159
Silas C. Swallow, Pro. 258,356
Thos. E. Watson, Pop. 117,183
Chas. H. Corrigan, Soc. Lab. 31,249

In 1896 out of a total of 446 electoral votes, McKinley received 271 and Bryan 176, making a majority of 95 for McKinley.

In 1900, out of 476 available electoral votes, McKinley received 292, against Bryan's 155, which gave the Republican candidates a majority over his opponent of 137, and a gain over his majority in the former election of 42 electoral votes.

In 1904 the total number of electoral votes still being 476, Roosevelt received 336 and Parker 140, a majority for the former of 196. This beat McKinley's electoral majority of 1900 by 101, and that of 1896 by 59.

A study of the electoral returns by states for the three elections of 1896, 1900 and 1904 shows that these 20 states went Republican in all three elections: Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Eleven states, all belonging to the "Solid South," the main reliance of the Democratic party, went Democratic in all three elections: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

Colorado, Idaho, Missouri, Montana and Nevada went Democratic in 1896 and 1900, but passed over to Roosevelt in 1904.

In addition to Nebraska, Bryan's own state, Kansas, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming decided that one try for Bryan was enough and voted Republican in 1900 and 1904.

California split its electoral vote in 1896, while in 1900 and 1904 the state went Republican. Kentucky split its vote in 1896, when Palmer and Buckner ran on the national Democratic ticket, owing largely to the fact that General Simon B. Buckner, the national Democratic candidate for vice-president, was a Kentuckian. In the succeeding elections Kentucky returned to the Democratic column.

Maryland split its electoral vote in 1904, giving Parker seven votes and Roosevelt one.

In this year's election there will be a total of 483 electoral votes, a gain of seven over the total of 1904, due to the admission of Oklahoma as a state. The number of electoral votes necessary to elect is 242, a simple majority of one. Oklahoma, it is thought, will go Democratic.

For Chronic Diarrhoea.
"While in the army in 1863 I was taken with chronic diarrhoea," says George M. Felton, of South Gibson, Pa. "I have since tried many remedies but without any permanent relief, until Mr. A. W. Miles, of this place, persuaded me to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, one bottle of which stopped it at once." For sale by Chas Strang.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.
Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by Chas. Strang.
