"Kerry Gow."

Bernard Daly, who will be seen next at the Medford Opera House, Saturday, February 1, as Dan O'Hara, in Joseph Murphy's famous drama, "Kerry Gow," is not only an admirable actor, but is also the possessor of a phenomenal voice, a tenor which ranges from C below the staff to E natural above. The story of "Kerry Gow" is simple and pure and each succeeding year has endeared itself more and more to the hearts of the public like listening to a good sermon, one feels better for having witnessed it. Its characters are all natural studies, true to life in Ireland. A rich vein of humor and Irish wit runs through the entire action of the play. An interesting scene is the blacksmith's shop, where Dan O'Hara moulds a horseshoe and shows a horse in full view of the audience. Another feature is the famous racetrack scene and the starting for hom of the carrier-pigeons, carrying the glad tidings of victory which means the saving of the old homestead of the Drew family, which was about to be seized by the heartless landowner, Valentine Hay. The unctious humor, the ready Irish wit, the twinkling eye of Bernard Daly, the young comedian, makes him an immediate favorite with his audience and when he sings the many charming Irish ballads his magnificent voice rouses his hearers to enthusiasm. tf

"A Desperate Chance."

Theodore Kremer, one of the most popular authors, has furnished theatergoers throughout the country with many a pleasant evening with the numerous successful plays that he has written. Mr. Kremer has equipped all previous efforts in his latest dramatic composition, "A Desperate Chance," which will be seen here at the Medford Opera House tomorrow night. In "A Desperate Chance," the author has taken for his theme an entirely new and novel idea, showing the great hypnotic power the famous Biddle brothers had over the gentle sex. The play abounds with intense situations, holding the interest of its audience from the beginning to the end. tf
