TWENTY MILLION DOLLAR DEPOT FOR SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—Railroad engineers have brought to fruition plans for a $20,000,000 union transportation terminal to be located in the strategic heart of the city, and the intersection of Van Ness avenue and Market streets. Into this depot will converge all railroads, interurban lines and subways, giving San Francisco a passenger and freight traffic center second to none other in the world in point of accessibility and convenience. The nucleus of the proposed site has been acquired quietly by the promoter of the project and existing natural conditions make the scheme easily feasible. A company will soon be launched to finance the undertaking.

Libraries and Laboring Men.

"On the floor of the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor there were several able men in parliamentary debate, but perhaps none was the peer of Andrew Furuseth of San Francisco, the delegate of the seamen of the Pacific. The history of his life reads like a romance. When a boy he ran away from his home in Norway, and, like many of the sons of that country, took up the sea. He has sailed almost every sea on the globe, but the story of how he became interested in the labor movement is worth reading.

"In the spring of 1880 an English merchant ship sailed into San Francisco with a cargo of merchandise from Chinese ports. Before the mast was Furuseth, registered on the ship crew as 'an able seaman.' He had no thought of leaving the vessel when he entered port, but all his life he had been studying and reading a few books that came his way. He went on into the city to purchase a few books and intended to go back to the vessel. In the store where he was making his purchases the salesman began to talk to him of the public library. He determined to see it for himself. The visit changed the whole course of his life. He determined to get a berth on a coasting vessel, and did so, in order that he might have a better opportunity to read. He sailed the coast for a few years and was chosen to an office in the Seamen's union. Today he is the foremost of the conservative labor men of the Pacific coast and is respected by employer and employe. Through his work the sailor's life in the merchant marine in all parts of the world has been improved, but he says in his modest way if he has been able to do any good for his fellow men the books in that library deserve the credit."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

ASK MORE FOREST LANDS.

That we ask the proper official of the the users and regular patrons of the reserve as liberal an allotment of range and number of cattle in 1908 as possible, and if reduction and restriction is necessary to make it gradual and the reduction proportional to avoid any radical changes that would tend to financially injure any stockman or the stock industry; be it further

"Resolved, by this association, That we ask the reserve service that tenants who rent the stock ranches of persons who are entitled to the grazing privilege be granted the same privilege as the actual owner, as the principal value of the majority of stock ranches lie in the outside range connected with the ranch. Therefore, we ask that due and careful consideration be given the various stock ranches in or near the forest reserve when the general allotments are made. Be it further

"Resolved, That the thanks of this association be extended to Forest Supervisor S. C. Bartrum for the uniformly able and impartial manner he has ever pursued in the discharge of his official duties and using his efforts in bringing about a co-operation with the stockmen to the end that the ranges have very materially improved and a general harmony between the stockmen prevails; be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the head of the governmental forest service and another be mailed to Supervisor S. C. Bartrum, and another filed with the secretary of this association."

BAKER - HUTCHASON CO.

Deviled Ham and Relishes

I was at a party the other night and a lot of young girls were guying an old bachelor and asking him why he'd never married, etc. He sprang those old gags about "marrying in haste and repenting in South Dakota," and there being "just as good fish in the sea as have ever been caught," when one of the girls remarked: "Did it ever occur to you that the bait might get stale while you were angling for them?"

In angling for customers we never allow the bait to get stale around this shop. We get in new goods by most every express these days. The boss believes in keeping the stock right up to the minute, so that if you read in any of the magazines or home journals of a new food product or relish of any kind you can come right to this store and see the article for yourself. We just got in a big lot of Underwood's famous Deviled Ham and Sardines. We are headquarters for relishes. They certainly do help you out good and plenty if your appetite is a little backward.
