

Medford Daily Tribune

A Live Paper in a Live Town. Published every day except Sunday. Medford Printing Company, G. PUTNAM, Proprietor and Manager. Admitted as Second Class Matter at the Postoffice at Medford, Oregon, September 15, 1902. Subscriptions: One month, by mail or carrier, $0.50. One year, by mail, $5.00.

EFFECT OF EXPANSION.

The Tribune has been taking advertising at a low price than the cost of production. As a result, it is forced to make a slight increase in rates. It is desired to place all business on a cash basis and those signing contracts or giving the benefit of a great reduction in rates are those who do not sign.

An advertising contract stands as a contract on both sides. The advertiser has no small matter, known either to be a target, but often he is to use it, and not what it will cost him. On the other hand, it enables the newspaper to figure in advance the size of the paper, its approximate income and expenses. It is merely a common sense business arrangement.

The advertiser who uses space regularly is worth more to the paper than the occasional advertiser and this fact is recognized by a sliding scale of rates established by the Tribune. The merchant who comes in once or twice a year is not entitled to the same rate as the one who can be depended upon day after day.

Previous managements of the Tribune placed the rates at so low a figure that bankruptcy constantly stared them in the face and finally overwhelmed them. Should the present rates be continued, the result would be the same. For the business has been taken at a rate less than the cost of production, with the result that the more advertising carried, the more money lost.

It is desired to enlarge the Tribune and make it a six and eight page paper, but before this can be done, a sufficient quantity of advertising must be signed up at rates that will at least pay for the cost of composition and the increase of white paper bill.

When the present management took hold of the Tribune, it was about as bad a derelict as ever floated on the sea of journalism. Its chief assets were unpaid circulation, bills and debts. All of the accumulated contempt engendered by previous mismanagement had to be wiped clean and a reputation established. Consequently, advertising in its columns was not worth much, and a good rate could not be established. For value required could not be rendered.

The Tribune today is an entirely different proposition. Its circulation is double what it was formerly and so is the expense of production. The Tribune can and does give good results to advertisers, and if the advertiser does not receive results, it is because he does not know how to advertise. If you, the Tribune will receive your advertisement for you.

The work of increasing the Tribune's circulation and advertising will be pushed steadily in the hope of building up a patronage that will justify the best rates in Oregon outside of Portland.

IN JUDGMENT.

My Soul stand here in the sight of men. My Soul stand firm, it fears no fear. For the blessing of men could not be just. The word of men could not understand.

My Soul stand here in the sight of a child. It does not understand, for it does not understand. The blessing of a child is the blessing of truth.

The blessing of a child may not understand. My Soul stand here in the sight of God. And my Soul rejoiced in its happiness.

For the blessing of God was forgiveness. The grace of God could understand.

NEBRASKA CAPITALIST VISITING IN MEDFORD

J. A. Beckwith, a banker and capitalist of Hebron, Neb., is in Medford looking over the city and valley with a view to investment. He states that many Nebraska cities are depending on visiting the Rogue river country this summer. He was induced to make the trip by J. H. Mitchell, the business manager who spent two months in 1907 central west this winter interesting people in Southern Oregon.

Mr. Beckwith is prominent in politics in his home state, having been a candidate for the office of state treasurer, losing the Republican nomination by only a few votes in the convention. He will be a decided acquisition to Medford should he locate here.

RESPECTED PIONEER WOMAN GONE TO HER LONG HOME

Miss M. A. Henson, who died of the influenza of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Hodgson of Astoria, Ore. in Nov. 1907. She was born in the State of Missouri and came to California with her husband in 1849. A long residence in the State suggested to her a return to Oregon, and she came here in 1880. Mrs. Henson was a good wife and a good mother. She was the mother of a son, who died in the late 1800s, and a daughter, who died in the late 1800s.

St. Mark's Church (Episcopal). The services at St. Mark's church, including both the morning and the evening services, will be held at 10 o'clock on Sunday. The subject of the sermon will be "The Power of Elijah's Spirit on Elisha." At night the theme will be "When Did Almighty God Kiss a Man Down in the Mire?" Sabbath school 10 a. m.; Epworth League, 6:30 p. m. All are invited.

Wednesday evening, instead of Monday, an information class will be held at the church. All desiring to learn more about the position of the Episcopal Church are cordially invited to attend.

Friday evening, services will be held during Lent with addresses on "Moral Heroes," illustrated with appropriate scenes. March 15, "No morals," and March 22, "John Calvin" will be the subjects.

The Sunday school, which meets at 10 o'clock, Sunday, continues to grow and definite constructive work is being accomplished.

"Why I Am Not a Campbellite." To correct a popular error, the minister of the Christian church will speak Sunday night on the subject, "Why I Am Not a Campbellite." Every fair minded man and every thoughtful person is earnestly invited to hear this sermon. The church of Christ stands for something and believes in its plea with all its heart. We do not stand for nor advocate human creeds, human names nor uninspired tests of fellowship for the people of God. Whatever your belief on these points may be, come and hear this subject. The morning subject will be equally important, viz., "How to Kill a Church." You may be doing that very thing. Learn how to build up instead of tearing down the best institution in the land. Cordial invitation to all. Marion F. Horn, minister.

Methodist Episcopal Church (B Street). "The Power of Elijah's Spirit on Elisha" will be the subject next Sabbath at 11 a. m. At night the theme will be "When Did Almighty God Kiss a Man Down in the Mire?" Sabbath school 10 a. m.; Epworth League, 6:30 p. m. All are invited.

Christian Science. Christian Science services are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the Commercial club rooms. Subject of the lesson-lesson for March 15, "Substance." All are welcome.

ANOTHER BIG PLACE TO BE PLANTED IN TREES

The heavy Miller place, two miles south from Gold Hill, consisting of about 800 acres, has been sold to Victor B. Bonn, recently from Astoria, for $2500. This is one of the best places in that part of Southern Oregon and Mr. Bonn is to be congratulated for securing such a valuable piece of property. He will put on John Newton's "Pippas" this spring and plant about 20 acres in it.
