PROFFESOR DOMA ON WASSON SPRINGS WATER

At the request of a number of prominent citizens, Professor Doma has made the following exhaustive tests of the superior purity of Medford's new water supply. Being a very practical man, as I have said before, the professor's tests were somewhat out of the ordinary chemical analysis, but proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Wasson Springs water is pure. A 22 1/2 gallon tin vessel was punctured at the bottom right hand corner with a 3/32 inch hole and allowed to stand tightly covered in a dry room for 24 hours. At the end of that time the cover was removed and the water was found to have all leaked out, which proves that it is a liquid and very thin and free from solid matter. Second test: An incubated toper with an iron constitution was closely confined in an alfalfa barn, 22x32 1/2 feet, without food or drink, except 10 gallons of Wasson Spring water. At the end of the allotted time he was examined. Results: Water all gone; constitution unimpaired; 20 pounds of alfalfa missing; man thoroughly sober. This proves that the water is appetizing and free from adulteration or contamination by fermented leaves, roots or grains. Third test: An ordinary hat was fitted as well as possible to a thoughtless person's head and Professor Doma threw five wash basins of Wasson Spring water out of a barrel from the second-story window down upon him. Results: The hat was ruined; his long hair was "soaked" (and as he after ward confided to Toggery Bill, he himself was, too, when he had paid $5.00 for it). Conclusion: The water is wet. The fourth test was an accident and befell one of the judges of the fairness of the tests. He was a gentleman of refined appearance and noted for his taste in dress. The professor was leaning out of the window noting the effect of the water on the careless man's hat when, by mistake, he tipped the whole barrel, water and all, down on the judge's head. Results: The gentleman was very angry and while he was uninjured he remarked "that the Professor of Physics was a "Blithering Cone-headed Blunderer." The hat, which was a "No Name," quickly resumed its original "snappy" shape and the dampness failed to penetrate its superior felt, which proves conclusively that the water is, in this one particular only, no better than ordinary rainwater, as neither can soak through a "No Name." Result: Many wise people who wish to look their best go to The Toggery and buy "No Names." They are of the "first water." The hat is admittedly the best hat in America today for the price, $3, $4, $5.

Wise Talks By the Office Boy. I was reading about a big firm back east that claims that preservatives are not necessary to the food-preserving industry, while all the others maintain that the new law, if strictly enforced, will put them out of business. But one big firm with a big reputation for putting up sound fruit can prove its position for all the rest. It's only a question of using sound fruit. Sound fruits, like sound women, need no preservatives. Say, it isn't me that's oozing all this wisdom. It's the paper I was telling you about. The boss takes a lot of trade papers and that keeps me posted on what is going on in the provision world, you bet. I think Preferred Stock are the nicest, and Heinz comes next, then Bishop.
