

ROSY PROSPECTS FOR FRUIT CROP

Value of Last Season's Output of Oregon Orchards Nearly Five Million—Past Year Unusually Profitable—Report Made to Board of Horticulture.

Reports submitted at the semi-annual meeting at Portland of the state board of horticulture show that fruit conditions throughout Oregon are improving rapidly and that the state is destined to become one of the greatest fruit-growing sections in the United States.

There are five horticultural districts in the state, each represented by a commissioner. W. K. Newell of Gaston is commissioner-at-large and president of the board.

Commissioner Carson's report was to the effect that fruit conditions in the state are unusually favorable, one of the reasons being that the temperature of the past winter did not exceed 26 degrees and there were no floods or rains that injured the orchards.

The Elephants Are Coming

Little Johnnie and his sister, like wise his papa and mamma, are happy for the first and only real big circus to visit this city this season is slated to appear here Tuesday afternoon and night, April 28.

Mr. Stuart spoke in glowing terms of the engagement of the Norris & Rowe circus in San Francisco this spring, where they exhibited for 60 consecutive performances to 279,873 paid admissions, which is the greatest number of admission tickets ever purchased and the longest engagement ever played by a circus in the west.

Two more advertising cars will come to this city before the advent of the big show, and hardly a day will pass that some representative of the big circus will not pay the city a visit, in an official capacity.

BUILD BIG POWER PLANT IN THE COQUILLE VALLEY

J. S. N. Smith of Coos Bay, formerly of Medford, consulting engineer of the recently organized Coquille Valley Power company, was in Portland last week on business in connection with that project.

Power has already been contracted for by Myrtle Point, Bandon, Marshfield and North Bend. It is believed that the construction of the power system is but the beginning of the Coos Bay and Roseburg Electric railway, appropriations for which were in part made last fall by citizens of Roseburg, but on account of the unsettled conditions of finances the matter was abandoned.
