HOW TO DISPOSE OF SURPLUS PUZZLES FLEET COMMITTEE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 4.—How to dispose of a surplus of $7000 is a question which is puzzling the fleet reception committee.

After the sub-committee reports were completed it was learned that that amount was on hand, and now the committee is trying to figure some way to use up the money without creating any dissatisfaction anywhere.

The Salvation Army wants some of it to meet the expenses of its waterfront lecture room and cafe. Several organizations also want the committee to give them a sum of money equal to that which they spent for lands in the parade.

A solution of the problem may be found in the donation of the entire amount toward the founding of permanent club.

August Reblum will breed fine horses.

LONDON, June 4.—In spite of the failure of his horse, Norman III, in the derby August Belmont announced today that he had decided to go to England to look for suitable stables to breed fine horses. His colors will be prominent next year's meetings in Ireland and England.

Belmont disagrees with Richard Croker that Ireland is a better training ground for flat races than England, and most of his flat racers will be trained at Newmarket, England.

James J. Parkinson, who was Richard Croker's first trainer, will have charge of the Belmont stables in Ireland. Parkinson has been commissioned to find the best that money can buy in the way of young blood and began preparing the horses immediately for the next season. Belmont is trying to secure the exclusive services of Dany Maher to ride for him. Maher wants $40,000 a year to ride only on the flat.

ELWOOD, Ind., June 4.—Peter Wise had the surprise of his life when he pulled a setting hen off the nest. He had noticed the fowl setting for some time and suspected that she was setting on a nest of spoiled eggs. When he lifted her up, instead of a brood of chickens there was a bunch of snakes—little sleek, black fellows, each wriggling furiously.

Mr. Wise promptly dispatched the snakes, 11 in number, and the hen was disposed of by having her neck wrung. Mr. Wise had no use for a hen that could not tell the difference between a snake's egg and her own.

BATTLE OF ROSES FEATURE OF PORTLAND CARNIVAL.

PORTLAND, Or., June 4.—Beautiful girls bombarding one another with fragrant roses was the spectacular climax of the fourth day of the Portland fiesta.

The battle of roses occurred during the floral parade in which hundreds of lavishly decorated carriages participated.

With the automobile road races, the parade of the East Side school children, the New York symphony orchestra concert and Madame Nordica, this has been one of the most eventful days of the carnival.

STUDENTS CAPSIZE: ONE OF PARTY IS DROWNED

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 4.—Searchers today failed to discover the body of Walter R. Heilmann, a young student at the Sacred Heart college, who was drowned in the capsizing of a sloop in the bay Wednesday afternoon.

Three other students of the same institution—M. Holms, Thomas Ryan and Francis Derham—were in the little boat and saved their lives only after a desperate struggle in the bay.

The boys were out in on the bay on a pleasure excursion, when the accident happened. The water was choppy and the weather squally. Twice the students put to shore with the boat.

An accident to the sail rendered it unmanageable and suddenly a gale came up and capsized the boat 500 yards from shore. A launch put out from shore, but Heilmann could not keep afloat till it reached them.

HOW SPINELESS CACTUS WAS FIRST PRODUCED.

Few persons among the thousands interested in the thornless cactus have the slightest idea of the work required by Luther Burbank from his assistants and correspondents in improving the breed.

In his interesting little pamphlet on the cactus we learn that he obtained the best varieties of agaves before he began his work. His collectors and others sent him the best obtainable specimens from Mexico, Central America, South America, North and South Africa, Australia, Japan, Hawaii and the South Sea islands. The United States agricultural department at Washington, through David G. Fairchild, obtained for him eight kinds of partly thornless varieties. These came from Sicily, Italy, France, North Africa and some of the wild regions of Mexico. In addition to all these varieties, Mr. Burbank had himself obtained some hardy wild species from Maine, Iowa, Missouri, Colorado, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Dakota, Texas and other parts of the United States.

He tells us that all of these varieties were grown and their values were studied and prepared with patient care. Many partly thornless varieties were obtained, but not one among the many thousands under observation was free from thorns or spines and even worse, the most promising varieties in these respects often bore the poorest fruit, or produced less fodder, or were less hardy than the wild and thornless species and varieties.

One may gather an idea of the method of Mr. Burbank's investigations when he recalls the fact that the first work was to select the best of these varieties, cross them, raise thousands of seedlings, select the best of these, and so continue hoping for improvement.

The thornless varieties now promise to be about the most important food producers of this age. Some of these new creations yield fully ten times as much food as others under exactly the same conditions.

AMUSEMENTS.

Georgia Harper Co. in Little Minister.

The largest house of the week witnessed the Georgia Harper production of Barrie's popular play, "The Little Minister," at the Medford opera house last night, and to say they were well pleased is putting it mildly.

Miss Harper in Maud Adams' famous role, Lady Babbie, had a chance to display her versatility, for the part is totally different from either Nell Grayson or Camille, and while some may prefer Miss Harper in one of the other characters, to the writer she was an ideal Lady Babbie.

Mr. Detrick made a splendid "Little Minister," as was to be expected. Magnetic and tender in the lighter scenes, yet firm and convincing when the occasion demanded. A word of commendation is also due Mr. Berrell for his character work as the old Scotchman, Thomas.

The scenery and costumes were in keeping with the rest of the performance, and went far towards the enjoyment of the audience.

Medford play-goers are just awakening to the fact that they are getting almost as much for 50c as they have been paying $1.50 for all season, and the house will undoubtedly be packed tonight for "Sappho," and for the remaining four performances of the engagement.
