

DIVINING RODS FIND LOST CITY

Berkeley Professor and a Hundred Enthusiasts Prepare to Dig for Forgotten Town Under the Hills

BERKELEY, Cal., June 22.—Professor Joseph Voyle and his fellow enthusiasts of the Psychological Research Society, who claim to have discovered another buried city by means of divining rods, are today making preparations to excavate the spot.

Attended by nearly one hundred recruits to his psychological research society, many of whom were well-known society women, Prof. Voyle started out over the hills back of the University of California yesterday on his second expedition in search of the buried city. With the aid of psychic compasses, divining rods and other occult instruments, the explorers decided that a large pile of rocks on the side of the hill was the site of the second forgotten city, and returned to Berkeley jubilant in their find.

The other city discovered by Professor Voyle and his followers was located under the University campus, but the authorities are not as enthusiastic as the professor of the research society, and refused to allow the grounds to be torn up.

AMUSEMENTS

Reserved seats for the band concert Friday night were placed on sale this morning and are going rapidly, indicating a packed house, which is as it should be, for the Medford band is deserving of a great deal of hard, conscientious work counts for anything.

From a handful of school boys playing in a haphazard way, every fellow for himself, the band has grown to a splendid concert organization of 25 pieces, handling the best grades of music and playing with the expression and skill of veterans. In addition to the eight band numbers, there will be two orchestra selections, one of which will be "The Merry Widow" and two vocal solos by Mrs. Hazelrigg and Miss Kifer.

Remember the date, Friday, June 26, (even if the Mail did say Friday, June 20). So get your seat now and help a good thing along.

TOGGERY BILL TELLS YOU

—that heat, perspiration and summer discomfort seem to forsake the man who is

Togged in a Blue Serge

—combine comfort with style, and style with economy, too.
—envelope yourself in a suit of American Mills blue serge and say "boo" to the sun—"Old Sol" will never fade a blue turned out with this brand.
—the young fellow who cannot look "striking" in one of Togger's Bill's serges—well, HE is un-striking by nature.
—and then there are quieter fashioned serges here for men more advanced in years—sort of modest kind, you know.
—now here's advice—friendly—don't pay $18 until you've seen Togger's Bill's merely $15.00

Yes sir; Straw Hats

—summer clothes beget summer hats, of course, and that means that you must have a sprightly straw hat if about to wear a blue serge suit. Togger's Bill has cornered every straw hat style worth while—has them for enthusiastic "Rah Rah" boys—for quiet gaited fellows—and middle-aged gentlemen, too.
