TAFT AND BRYAN COMPARED.

A clear comparison of Taft and Bryan is made by Lincoln Steffens in the July Everybody's. Mr. Steffens has interviewed the presidential candidates upon their views of conditions and the following is a summary of his conclusions:

"These two men do not differ essentially in the final analysis of their programs. They would return to competition, which socialism and the trusts would abolish. They want the struggle for survival to go on; it is to be a fair fight, but a fight, and for wealth, too, even between capital and labor. Bryan, having had more time to reflect and having lived out west, where the problems of business and politics are clearer and simpler, sees them more definitely than Roosevelt and Taft, who have been men of action always. For example, Bryan goes at the problem of poverty consciously. All his policies are directed, as he himself points out, at excessive wealth, which is, at bottom, the same as excessive poverty. And besides the remedies listed above, he advocates an inheritance tax and, more important still, 'a tax on incomes as a regular item in our fiscal system.' So does Taft advocate these measures; but Bryan sees their relation to other taxes.

The constitutional objection of the supreme court Bryan meets with a proposition to amend the Constitution. Taft regards this as unnecessary. Indeed, Taft doesn't want any more legislation than is necessary to make our present laws effective. And there we have a big difference between the two men.

"Bryan sees the part privileges play in our system; he sees it clearly as a case of injustice, and he would legislate and legislate till he had abolished all the artificial advantages that are granted by government.

"Taft, a proved executive and a born judge, would depend upon the executive to achieve the same end more vaguely seen. Bryan is not of the executive type, and there is reason to fear that he is no better judge of men than Roosevelt to say nothing of Taft; but seeing the end more clearly, he would not depend so much upon the men he appointed and the courts to prevent and punish evil as he would upon legislation to remove the cause.

"And, unlike Taft, but very much like Roosevelt, Bryan would preach and teach and—lead.

"We must not only see to it that the government shall take away the prizes that make men pursue a low ideal; we must all of us as individuals strive to inculcate higher ideals in others. Taft should give us better government of things as they are; Bryan, leading us on to change things, should make us better people."

That the prohibition tide in the south is already beginning to recede is proven by the defeat of former Senator Carmack Saturday in the Tennessee democratic primaries by Governor M. R. Patterson for the gubernatorial nomination, after one of the hardest fights on record. Carmack was the champion of state prohibition.

CHAMBERLAIN TO VISIT CRATER LAKE IN AUGUST

This will be a big year for tourists at Crater Lake and other parts of the country, and every day word is being received of some new ones being added to the list.

Governor Chamberlain and family will visit the lake with his family in August.

E. H. Harriman will not arrive at Pelican Bay until the latter part of July. He expects to spend a week or so at his resort at Pelican Bay before he makes the trip to Crater Lake. Clifford Pinchot, chief of the forestry department, has signified his intention of visiting the lake this summer. John Sharp Williams, democratic leader of the house of representatives, is another prominent legislator who will visit Crater Lake.

It is believed that congress will recognize the importance of the National Park in Klamath county and will make a suitable appropriation for its improvement next year. An effort is being made to get as many of the prominent legislators and high government officials to visit this scenic wonder as possible, so that when the matter of an appropriation comes up in congress, they can use their influence to increase the allowance.

PARTY MAROONED ON BARREN ISLAND

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 30.—A party of six campers are marooned on an uninhabited island, San Nicholas, the outermost island of the group off the coast of California and about 110 miles at sea. It is believed they are without provisions or water. Ten days ago the party was taken to the island on the launch Nita. No names were given to the captain and no word except that he was to call for them on Thursday last week. The launch Gela started for San Nicholas on Wednesday with water and provisions, but in a dense fog that prevailed Captain Joe Gessew was unable to locate the little island and was finally driven to the harbor by a heavy storm. The launch today started again to

THAW AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT; TRIES TO ESCAPE ASYLUM

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 29.—Harry Thaw has obtained a new writ of habeas corpus returnable before Supreme Judge Mohr of White Plains, N. Y. The writ was obtained in anticipation of Judge Morschauser signing an order at 11 o'clock this morning recommitting Thaw to Matteawan.

The anticipation by Thaw and his counsel that Justice Morschauser would recommit the slayer of Stanford White to Matteawan proved correct. District Attorney Mohr, presented to the judge this morning the former order of recommitment to Matteawan, which Justice Morschauser promptly signed.

It will have the effect of returning Thaw to Matteawan today, but just before the order was signed Under Sheriff Townsend, who has been the custodian of Thaw ever since the first habeas corpus proceedings were begun, was served with the new writ of habeas corpus which commands the sheriff to produce Thaw in the supreme court at White Plains on Monday morning.

Charles Morschauser of Poughkeepsie, now that his brother, Justice Morschauser, has finally disposed of the case, has been retained by Thaw to conduct the new proceedings.

Harry Thaw was delighted with the turn affairs have taken. He made the following statement:

"I cannot bear the thought of returning to Matteawan on account of being obliged to associate there with insane people. I would rather go to prison. I have thought all along, and especially since Judge Morschauser handed down his decision, that if I could get my case to a jury I would be able to convince the 12 men of my present sanity, and secure thereby my liberty. I am anxious to take the stand and be examined as to my mental condition, feeling confident that a jury will agree that I am not insane."

Notice.

The Rogue River Horticultural society will not meet this week, since the Fourth of July falls on the regular day. There will be no meeting until August.

FOR REALISM.

Robert Louis Stevenson's injunction to a Small Nephew to Play.

A story about Robert Louis Stevenson not generally known, according to the New York Sun, is told by Mrs. Stevenson's grandson, Austin Strong. When Mr. Strong was a little chap Mr. Stevenson liked to sit propped up in bed to watch him at play in the next room. And often it happened that the bigger boy of the two would make suggestions for the make-believe games and insist that they be carried out too.

One day Austin had arranged some chairs in a row, playing that they were ships, and he, standing on the front, was the captain. For a long time he proudly walked the deck of his vessel, encountered pirates and weathered all kinds of storms until he felt the floor positively heave under his feet.

Mr. Stevenson looked on in perfect silence, but complete absorption, no doubt playing the whole thing much the harder of the two. Finally Austin got tired of his vessel, climbed off his chair and began walking across the room to some object which had attracted his interest.

This was too much for his uncle. Still deep in the game, Mr. Stevenson rose in his sickbed and shouted excitedly at the recalcitrant sea captain: "Swim, — you, swim!"

A WARM RECEPTION.

It Gave the Hungry Preacher an Appetite For Dinner.

Before accepting an invitation it is as well to be sure it is given in good faith. After an afternoon service held many years ago in a certain village in Scotland the preacher, a stranger, who had officiated, accompanied one of the elders of the congregation home and was introduced to his wife. The good man having asked the clergyman to stay to dinner, the latter, after a little pressing, consented.

The good lady hurried off to prepare for the unexpected guest, and, seeing as she thought, her husband washing, as was the custom in those days, at the family sink, she seized the family Bible, approached stealthily from behind and brought down the ponderous tome upon his bald pate, exclaiming: "Tak' ye that for bringing hungry preachers here to dinner every time they come to the parish."

As soon as the assaulted one could get the ends out of his eyes he looked about him and, after thinking the matter out, concluded that the old lady had made a slight mistake. She, too, came to the same conclusion when, on returning to the parlor, she beheld her husband patiently waiting for his reverend friend!—Dundee Advertiser.

Artificial Teeth.

It is certain that the ancients had a knowledge of dentistry, but it is difficult to determine when or by whom the use of artificial teeth was introduced. Herodotus says that the Egyptians had "dentists for the teeth." In the British museum there are various dental instruments which had been found in the ruins of Pompeii, and Galen in the second century describes the method of extracting teeth by means of forceps. Belonius says that artificial teeth were in use in antiquity, since he found some specimens in the catacombs.

Modern dentistry admits that the first to teach how to make artificial teeth was the Arabian Al-Buhārī, and in his work "Al Tarīf" are drawings of instruments used for this purpose.

The earliest known allusion to artificial teeth is by Martial in the first century: You use without a blush false teeth and hair. But Lævia, your squint is past repair. —Minnneapolis Journal.

Won in Spite of His Lawyer.

A once well known attorney used to tell a good story on himself. He had been retained to defend a counterfeiter and advised him to plead guilty. His client did so, and as there was in the mind of the court a fixed idea that if a prisoner pleads guilty he does so because he has no attorney the judge asked him why he made that plea. "Because my lawyer told me to." "Did he give you any reason for it?" "Yes. He told me I would have no show before this judge."

The court fared up and ordered a plea of not guilty to be entered, and the counterfeiter was acquitted.

Memory.

If it should be asked what possession I most valued, I would say some beautiful memory. Memory is possession. It is the only thing on earth that is absolutely ours, which no one can take from us. We can produce and enjoy it in a crowd of uncongenial people as easily as if we were alone. No noise can drown its voice; no distance can dim its clearness. Strength, hope, beauty, everything else, may pass. Memory will stay.—Selected.

The Ignorance of Youth.

She—You said that I was necessary to your happiness. He—I was young then and very ignorant. I had no conception of relative values. She—What do you mean? He—I mean that I didn't know a necessity from an affliction.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Worse Than Waiting.

"Are you waiting for me, dear?" she said, coming downstairs at last, fixing her hat. "Waiting?" exclaimed the impatient man. "No; not waiting—sojourning!" —Yonkers Statesman.
