NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS ACCIDENT

J. E. Eynart is congratulating himself on his narrow escape in what came close to being a serious runaway accident Sunday evening. While returning from a long auto trip the machine which he was driving gave out at Eagle Point and he hired a rig to bring himself and family into Medford. Near the Eagle Point bridge the team became frightened at something and bolted, leaving the road and running through the underbrush for nearly half a mile before Mr. Eynart succeeded in stopping them. It was the merest providence that the survey didn't upset with serious consequences to the little party. They finally got home safely in another machine, which they summoned on Medford by telephone.

IS UNABLE TO ENFORCE DISCIPLINE AT REFORMATORY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 30.—Serious allegations of mismanagement in the conduct of the Whittier state industrial school for boys and girls have been made against Superintendent J. P. Greeley at a meeting of the board of trustees. Four employees at the school have been dismissed and the board decided today to lay the case at once before Governor Gillette. The principal charge against Greeley is that he is unable to enforce discipline at the school. As a result, it is asserted that a shockingly immoral state of affairs exists at the institution. Damaging exhibits in the form of obscene letters, indecent postals and notes, are said to be in possession of one of the trustees who says he will produce them later.

CLEANING UP PROGRAM DISCUSSED BY COUNCIL

A cleaning up program was discussed by the city council Tuesday night. A cemetery and dumping ground were among the ones for dirt talked of. Boxes were ordered purchased to place along paved streets as receptacles for waste paper and dirt. Ordinances for the paving of Seventh street were passed and numerous petitions for water mains referred to the water committee. The city engineer was asked to prepare specifications for a sewer on Oakdale avenue. The dumping of rubbish by people of Talent into Bear creek was ordered investigated.

Didn't Give Him a Chance

"Say, ma," piped up little Johnny after the minister had finished his call and taken his departure, "when Mr. Meeker was here every time you stopped talkin' a minute he would start in to say 'somethin' an' git us for every time as 'I dare say,' an' then you would start goin' an' talk a lot more, an' that is the way it kept on right along, an' the only thing he said all the time he was here was 'I dare say,' 'I dare say,' every few minutes." "Well, what of it?" I am not to blame for Mr. Meeker's paucity of ideas, am I?" demanded Johnny's mother, somewhat impatiently. "I dunno 'bout that," said Johnny doubtfully, "as if me exactly sure what was meant by paucity of ideas, 'but anyhow, ma, you order give him a chance. When he started in with 'I dare say,' why didn't you keep quiet just once, ma, an' let him go ahead an' say what he was goin' to an' have it over with?"—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A Chapel on a Bridge

At St. Ives, the little old Huntingdonshire town in which Oliver Cromwell lived for several years, there is a bridge spanning the lazily flowing Ouse, and on this bridge is a quaint building which at one time did duty as a chapel. The structure has been in existence for something like 500 years and was, according to local historians, originally employed as a beacon light-house. After that it was turned for a time into a hotel and eventually became an ordinary dwelling house. Some of the rooms in this curious building are below the level of the water in the river.

His Sorrow

"You know that box of cigars you gave me on my birthday, dear?" said a man to his wife. "Yes." "Well, I took them down to the office, and some one stole them." "It's awfully sorry." "No, ma, I'm for the thief!" was the cruel remark.

An Outsider

Suffor—Your daughter, sir—well, er—that is—she told me to come to you—she says you—Pater—Quite so—I understand. Let's see, are you Mr. Bronson or Mr. Wibbles? Suffor—Why, I'm Mr. Hotchkins—Cleveland Leader.

WRITERS HONOR MEMORY OF THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 30.—The memory of Thomas Bailey Aldrich was honored today by one of the most distinguished assemblages of writers this country has known, who met to attend the dedication of the poet's homestead, which is to be preserved as a public memorial museum. Speakers of the day included Mark Twain, Mayor Hackett, Hamilton Mabie and Governor Ouil.

THE PATRIOTIC SALE AN EXCELLENT CHANCE TO SAVE

Every lady or miss can use a Parasol, an extra hat, skirt, waist, petticoat, suit, wrap, purse, belt or some fancy ribbon, neckwear or hosiery or underwear. These goods and many more are now selling at prices which are as low as it is possible to make prices and be able to pay the actual running expenses of a store. Why sell so close? Because, profit time is past, and all we want to do now is to move the goods and make room for large shipments of fall goods, which will begin to arrive in July. We don't believe in carrying over anything from one season to another. You can use these goods now to good advantage.
