

BRYAN IDOL OF RADICALISM

Idle for Anyone to Deny Fact That Nebraskan is Favorite of Democrats

Walter Wellman at the Denver convention writes of the great Bryan demonstration as follows to the Chicago Record-Herald:

"The blind shall lead the blind." What is the meaning of this mighty demonstration for Bryan? What does it signify? How shall it be correctly interpreted? For, of course, it has a meaning. It signifies something as to our national life and thought and movement and future. It is a contribution to history. It is something more than hysteria. It lies deeper than mere superficial emotionalism. It is an expression of the feeling of a large part of the American people—how large a part the future must determine, because the present cannot.

It means, of course, idolatry for a man. It means devotion to a leader. It means that somehow, and by some means, by some legend, or art or trick William J. Bryan is a hero in the eyes of a considerable part of the people of this country. Ours are a people who are known throughout the world for their practicality, for their hardheadedness, for their devotion to business, to the material affairs of life. But we who know our countrymen better, know that sentiment after all rules us.

Americans Worship Heroes.

Yearning for something higher, for an uplift, for a reform, searching for or following an ideal, is the dominant note of American character. We are a race of hero worshippers. We have worshiped military and naval heroes when the times were propitious, therefore, now we are worshipping heroes among our publicists. The cataclysm of emotionalism and admiration and faith and exaltation means that Bryan is the idol of the democratic masses. It is idle for anyone to say otherwise.

It is useless to point out that many of the delegates who are here to vote for him and make up the two-thirds of all required for his nomination are instructed, or apathetic, or at heart preferring another man and another policy. Virtually the whole delegate body prostrated itself in ecstatic glee at the altar where gathered the emblems of the states. When the historian of the future sits down calmly and leisurely to analyze this outburst of American aspiration and individual worship, he will, if I mistake not, find one salient, dominant fact underlying it all.

Put Men Above Dollars.

That is the feeling of many Americans—whether a majority or not, no one knows—that in some way, under some leadership, by some party, this must be done. The influence in government of the man of much money must not be greater than the influence of the man of little money. This is a government of men, not of dollars. This is the land of equal rights and no special privilege.

Upon this generalization the democratic party is built. It may claim to get its inspiration from Jefferson; it may try to make itself believe its roots go back to the fathers; but temperamentally, psychologically, inevitably it is nothing less than the protest of the moderately successful or not successful at all against the favored few of fortune, of the toiling millions against the upper crust—not to break them down, not to have revolution in violence or confusion, but to restrain, regulation, checkmating, delimitation.

Voice of Radicalism.

In other words it is the voice of radicalism we have heard today in the Denver auditorium, the cry of radicalism and of the mass against the rule of conservatism; the eternal struggle of those below against those above, the struggle that has been going on ever since organized society was evolved from chaos, and which must go on till the end of time.

KETCHELL AND KELLY TO GO TWENTY ROUNDS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 11.—Stanley Ketchell and Hugo Kelly will fight 20 rounds for the middleweight championship of the world at the Coliseum here on the evening of July 31. Promoter Luke Marsch signed the fighters today and has already forwarded the proposition to Kelly and his manager.

Details of the fight, including the percentage of the gate receipts to be posted, the division of the purse, the referee and the weight to be carried, will be decided after Kelly's arrival.

RAISES RATES TO PAY PRESENT WAGE SCALE

NEW YORK, July 11.—Rather than bring on a strike of railroad men by reducing their wages, President Ripley of the Santa Fe railroad states that rates would be increased.

Incidentally Mr. Ripley remarked that most of the railroad systems in the country are mere imitations of what they should be.

"The wages of the railroad employees could not be reduced without causing a stock panic, which paralyzes business."

Union services will be held Sunday evening on the East Side. The services will be conducted by the Rev. W. E. Good at the Methodist church, and on the West Side M. F. Horn at the Methodist Episcopal church, South.
