Findley Eddy station about September 20 and unless high water damages the racks, the work will continue up till November 15. This station is situated on the south bank of the river about 13 miles below Grants Pass, on what is known as the Inana Findley ranch, and is best reached from the Pass, by taking the Crescent City road until you cross the Applegate bridge, and then follow down the river road which will bring you right to the station. To spawning, the salmon are killed and any one desiring these fish are welcome to come and get them. They are given away each day to those applying to the foreman in charge of the work, the fish being divided as nearly equal as possible among the applicants. Every body being treated on an even footing as long as the work is not interfered with. These fish are far from being first class, as many have been in the river for months without eating anything, and the oil and strength of the meat has been absorbed into the spawn. There is nothing bad about them however, and those wishing them are welcome to the fish. Some may not understand why we kill the salmon when the spawn is taken. It is because the fish are going to die in a very short time anyhow. Where they spawn naturally, both the male and female die within two or three weeks after spawning. This seems to be a queer provision of nature but is nevertheless true. Some have contended that where the salmon spawn near the mouth of the river and are not too badly run down, that on reaching the salt water, their scales heal over and the fish get well again. It is possible that this may hold true in rare instances, but our scientific men state that the salmon is constituted to spawn but once, and whether far up the river or near the ocean, that all die shortly after spawning. In my opinion, based upon my own observations, there is not the slightest doubt but that the scientists are correct. The trout spawn over and over again, and these we do not kill when taking the spawn, but quite often a trout will be injured so that it is best to kill it when spawning. I have cut open hundreds of these, and an examination of the ovaries always shows new seed forming, but with the salmon it is different. I have cut open thousands after spawning, and have never found a sign of new seed in a single one of them. That shows they were intended to spawn but once. Going to the natural spawning grounds you will see dead and dying salmon by the thousands. None are feeding and growing stronger, but all are dead and dying. This makes it seem reasonable to me that nature intended all to die. This being true, the females are killed as it is much easier, quicker and better to cut the eggs out of a fish, rather than to press them out, one at a time, through the vent as it used to be done, and with the fish struggling. The average number of eggs to a female being 5000, it took a long time to squeeze the eggs out of a fish, many were ruptured and the egg loss accordingly much greater than where the eggs are taken by incision. The eggs are taken into a square shaped pan made for the purpose, and milk is then stripped from a male onto the eggs, a little water added and the eggs stirred to insure them all coming in contact with the milk. They are then measured into the baskets in which they are held until they hatch.

Summary of Work Done
The spawning will not begin at the Illinois river station until the first of November. This station is situated about 14 miles below Selma and is reached by a mountain trail from either that place or Kerby, and it will be necessary for parties to bring pack horses in order to get fish out to the road from this hatchery.

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. Rows include Elk Creek Station, Applegate river, Eggs shipped to Argentine Republic, Fry lost, Fry planted in Rogue river, Grand total.

Black Spotted Trout
These are commonly called rat throats. There were 72,000 of these eggs taken, and the resulting fry were all planted in the Rogue and its tributaries.

Freight from Illinois Reached Here in 11 Days
There is being unloaded at the depot this morning a car of agricultural implements from the John Deere company, Moline, Ill., for a Medford firm. This car covered the distance between Moline, Ill., and Medford in 11 days, exceptionally fast time. The load of five says this is the fastest time they have any record of.

REDDING, Cal., Sept. 17.—According to an order received here today from President Roosevelt 70,000 acres of land on the California Oregon line is set aside as a bird preserve.

Silver Salmon
Seventy-five thousand of these eggs were received from the Applegate station. These were all hatched and planted in the Rogue and its tributaries.

Findley Eddy Station
Of the 3,161,500 of Chinook salmon received, 1,500,000 were shipped to R. D. Home and there hatched and planted in the Rogue at that point. The rest of the eggs were hatched at the station and the resulting fry liberated in the Rogue near there.

ed in the Rogue.
Silver Salmon.—120,000 eggs were taken, the eggs were hatched and planted in the Rogue at this point.
Illinois River Station
Chinook Salmon.—1,600,000 eggs were taken. Of these 500,000 were shipped to R. D. Home and there hatched and planted in the Rogue. The rest were hatched at this point and the resulting fry liberated in the Illinois river near the station.
Steelhead Trout.—60,000 eggs were taken and all were hatched and planted at this point.
Besides the above work, several applicants were supplied with trout, from the Cleckamas hatcheries, in total ranging from 5000 to 10,000, which were planted in the Rogue and more would have been assigned had applications been made.

FAMOUS MINE BOUGHT BY PORTLAND PEOPLE

GRANTS PASS, Or., Sept. 17.—The famous Scribner & Henderson gold properties of the Wolf creek district, northern Josephine county, have been purchased by W. H. Burghardt of Portland and Joseph Dyser of Grants Pass. The new owners have taken possession and will at once begin the active development of the property. This is one of the most remarkable free gold propositions in Oregon, if not on the coast. It was discovered by Scribner & Henderson several years ago, and has since been operated by them, and by the crude method of arrastra, sluice and mortar. As there was plenty of rich stuff near the surface, and handsome wages could be made, the owners were satisfied with operating on the ancient plan and refused many flattering offers. They removed several fortunes from the proposition. The first few weeks that they worked it, the sluices cleaned up $35,000. A double-tub arrastra was later placed on the property.
The Scribner & Henderson is located on one of the best belts of diorite, which, in southern Oregon, are the source of many gold bearing ledges and pocket veins. The formation is a soft red or yellowish rock which is given the name of "porphyry" by the miners. Whenever this formation occurs in Josephine county, gold is always found. The values lie in frequent veins and rich streaks, sometimes almost pure metal. The Scribner & Henderson dike has a width of a quarter mile. The oxidized, gold bearing portion of the belt is from 20 to 40 feet deep, with values all the way through. In the five years that the proposition has been worked two long tunnels have been driven, one to a depth of 500 and the other 800 feet. The new owners have begun a vertical shaft, and will sink it to a depth of 500 feet. A mill, suitable for reducing the stuff, of which the big dike is composed, will be placed.
The company that recently purchased the Golden Wedge mine of the Galice district is preparing to install ten additional stamps and enlarge the cyanide and concentrating plant. The new equipment will be placed at once, and the mine operated on a much larger scale in the future. The Golden Wedge is one of the older southern Oregon properties. For a number of years it was operated very successfully by Willis Kromer, and later by Thion brothers. The present Golden Wedge company is composed of eastern men. The mine has produced over $100,000. Most of this amount was mined from above the adit level of the present workings. As a whole the property has hardly been scratched. The ledge is well defined, and the mine gives every promise of becoming a splendid property. The new owners have the means to put it in excellent shape for work.

Reduced Rates to Livestock Show.
The Pacific National Fair and Livestock show will be held in Portland September 21st to September 29th. Round trip tickets will be sold at a fare and a third for this event, tickets being on sale September 21, good to return until September 27. Further particulars at the depot. 163

The first instance of the real enforcement of the fruit inspection law to a letter was exemplified in the destruction of the orchard on the Cass place just south of Grants Pass. The fruit trees on this place have stood for several years without any care, because the estate was in litigation in the courts. The authorities had notified the owners and parties interested, but no heed was taken. Finally the county fruit inspector ordered the trees all grubbed up as they were deemed a public danger and nuisance.

JEWISH ILL FEELING AGAINST BINGHAM IS ABATING

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Jewish ill feeling against Police Commissioner Bingham has somewhat abated today, owing to his repudiation of a magazine article published under his name in which it was stated that 50 per cent of the criminals in New York were Jewish. In making the retraction, Commissioner Bingham states that the figures used in the article were compiled by others, and while he assumed them to be correct, he has since discovered them to be unreliable.

Do you think you could buy a range from a St. Louis peddler and pay him $72 cash or $77 credit and then come to Medford and ask your merchant to sell you a spade for 75 cents, or a bucket of paint for $1.50, complaining of hard times? There is a Malleable Steel Range known as the MONARCH that can skin the St. Louis range a mile in quality, looks and durability. It is guaranteed to last always and it costs $60.00 and $65.00 cash. You can dance, two at a time, on the oven door. You can weld iron on its top. It has a draft that you will say at once beats them all. But when you have looked over the Toledo Panels, all its merits, see its finish, you will tell the range peddler to dump his old wood-eating machine in the river and get a good range. Sell to him; he sends the money back to St. Louis. Yes, he pays no taxes to keep up the roads he is wearing out. It costs him $5.00 for a team, $2.00 for lodging and $5.00 for wages each day; and who pays it? Go and talk it over with
