RISKED LIFE TO SAVE

THOSE OF COMPANIONS

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 18--As the result of his efforts to avert a boiler explosion which threatened the lives of employees of the Paraffine Paint company, W. Lewis is suffering from a broken leg today.

The injector which feeds water into the boiler failed to work properly yesterday afternoon, and when Lewis discovered the fact the water was very low in the boiler.

In his haste to bank the fire, he stumbled over an pile of bricks and his right leg snapped. Unmindful of the pain he was suffering, Lewis extinguished the fire and opened the exhaust valve, averting the threatened explosion. He was later found unconscious by the side of the boiler.
