

WESTERN RANCH LIFE IN THE EARLY DAYS

Among the many interesting scenes depicting western life in the early days which will be presented as part of Buffalo Bill's wild west when it visits this city will be "A Holiday at T.E. Ranch." In this scene the pleasures and pastimes of the plainsman will be depicted. His sports and amusements will be re-enacted with the same fidelity to fact which marks all the features of Colonel William F. Cody's remarkable exhibition. The scene painter has reproduced with as much exactness as circumstances will permit the ranch house of Colonel Cody and its surroundings. T.E. ranch is the winter home of Buffalo Bill, in Wyoming, near Cody, a prosperous city which has been named in his honor. Here it is that Buffalo Bill spends his vacations between the traveling seasons of his historic exhibition. The scene depicts a typical cowboy holiday and the sports and pleasures of the plainsman are enacted in detail. Ray Thompson's troupe of educated bronchos and mustangs is also introduced in the ranch scene. They are the first western horses that have ever been trained to duplicate the feats of thoroughbred circus horses. As a climax to their exhibit, one of the ponies jumps over a table, where a group of diners are reveling. Never before have the accomplishments of these ponies been attempted by horse trainers, for it has been an accepted belief that bronchos and mustangs could not be trained to do exhibition "stunts." The holiday festivities are interrupted by an attack by Indians and the resulting action shows in a striking manner the perils of life during the era of the pioneer settlers of the prairies. Other typical western scenes, open-air melodramas, in fact, will be "The Battle of Summit Springs" and "The Great Train Hold-Up"—two strikingly different, still typical western scenes. Add to these dioramas, the congress of rough riders of the world and it will be readily admitted that Buffalo Bill presents an entertainment unique in character and strictly alone in its class among open-air amusements.

WATER FROM SPRINGS FOR KLAMATH FALLS

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Sept. 24.—Klamath Falls will soon have a water system sufficient for a city of 10,000 people. Two reservoirs on hills overlooking the town are now nearing completion, and with the original reservoir the total storage capacity will be 700,000 gallons. The source of supply is a number of large springs, and as not all of these are now used, others can be opened if the growth of the city demands more water.

GERMAN PRINCE FREED, OWING TO HIS HEALTH

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Because no exact time for a continuance of his hearing can be set, Prince Zuelenberg, arrested on a charge of jerrying in connection with the "round table" scandal, is free today, having been allowed his liberty without bail or surveillance until such time as his health will permit him to appear in court again.

THE PATRIOTIC ORATOR.

(Written for The Tribune.) The patriotic voter Will now take up his work And in clarion tones Demand that we our shirk. Vote for the grand old party And that familiar dinner guff That never will be killed If wicked democrats prevail. He will quote impassioned oomphs And "canned arguments" galore, He will tell you how we suffered Way back in '54. He will call the recent panic A "slight financial flurry," But put Big Bill in office And there will be no cause for worry. He's so mighty strong for battleships He chews naught by navy plug. On each freighter he'd have cannon Likewise on every tug. If you want to see him sidestep, Just ask him if it's true That the G. O. P. in congress Cut Teddy's navy bill in two. He feels that it's his mission To protect the sons of Ham. He loves them most sincerely, But is silent as a clam. If you chance to mention Brownsville, Or state you often feel Some of our colored soldiers Didn't get that famed "square deal." He's solicitous for labor, And down on every trust; His is the only party That knows what's right and just. He exclaims that wealth and power Guilty men will not avail, But we can't recall a magnate Now sojourning in a jail. —R. O. Chester.
