LAST OF THE PASCAGUULAS.

An Indian Legend From the Shores of the Gulf of Mexico.

An Indian legend of the Pascaguulas is told by the fishermen and oyster men down on the shores of the gulf of Mexico.

A point reaches out into the gulf near the mouth of the Pascaguula river. The pine trees on it come almost to the water's edge and between these a strip of white sand, across a marsh a border of light green swaying and rustling grasses and beyond a gray expanse swamp the hanging mass of the trees swaying in the wind. To the south the blue waters of the gulf stretch away, with little waves lapping on the chalk white clam shells of the shore.

There in the evening during the short twilight one hears soft music, as if it were the notes of a violin, insistent, changing, sweet. It is the song of the Pascaguulas.

Long years before the Pascaguula Indians had lived upon this point. The white men, the Spaniards, came in numbers, and with them the hostile warriors of other tribes, to make war and to drive the Pascaguulas out of the country. Coming from the inland, the and hedged them in on the point. The Pascaguulas fought for days and nights in the dark pine woods against outnumbering foes. Then they saw that all was useless, that they could not overcome, and starvation started them in the face.

The Pascaguulas called a council of the tribe and talked long together. To give themselves up meant lives of slavery or death, and to fight to the last man was to leave the women and children to the mercy of the white men and their allies.

The next morning the Pascaguulas put on all their paint and trappings and burned their wigwams. The men, women and children slowly, deliberately unflinchingly backed step by step into the water behind them, singing. Not one faltered. They died with their faces toward their enemies, brave and free, and now in the evening when the wind blows over the marshes the pines and grasses sing the song of the Pascaguulas.—New York Post.

Your Opportunity is at Our ANNIVERSARY SALE

A Pleasure to Show Goods

It is certainly a pleasure to show our goods. First, they stand second to none in point of style, quality and desirability. Second, the prices during this sale and all the time are unquestionably the lowest ever attempted in southern Oregon. Third and last, but greatest of all, is the fact that people are buying our goods and we never hear a person kick on the price. Of course, some people find goods better than they want to buy, but all agree that the prices, quality considered, are the lowest they find anywhere.

GUARANTEED—We guarantee everything to be as good as we claim or the money will be cheerfully returned.

RAILROAD FARE FREE.

During this sale the railroad fare will be paid both ways within a radius of 20 miles, and one way within 40 miles.

AN EXTRA INDUCEMENT.

To all persons who do not pay fare we will give a discount of 5 per cent on all goods whether marked down or not.
