DEFEAT BUT ENDEARS HIM.

That defeat will but further endear William Jennings Bryan in the hearts of his countrymen is a foregone conclusion. The better they know him, the better they love him. He is by all odds the highest type of man ever a candidate for public office. The fact that he carried this the price. year his own precinct, city and state, which are heavily republican, shows his growth in the esteem of his neighbors.

His defeat wrung more hearts in America than the defeat of any man since Henry Clay failed, as Bryan has

Bryan's speech to his fellow townsmen the evening of election affords a glimpse into the heart of the man and is worth while. He says:

"My friends, I am at the end of my third presidential campaign. Tomorrow when millions of voters will decide whether I am to occupy the seat that Washington and Jefferson and Jackson and Lincoln occupied, you will have your part in that victory or in that defeat. If fate decrees that I shall be added to the list of presidents and Nebraska added to the list of states that have furnished a president, I shall rejoice with you. If, on the other hand, the election shall be against me, I can feel that I have left nothing undone that I could have done to bring success to my cause. And, my friends, I shall find private life so full of joy that I shall not miss the presidency.

"I have been the child of fortune from my birth. God gave me immediately into the keeping of a Christian father and a Christian mother. They implanted in my heart the ideals that have guided my life. When I was in law school I was fortunate as I was in my college days, to fall under the influence of men of ideals who helped me shape my life; and when, but a young man not out of college yet, I was guided to the selection of one who for twenty-four years has been my faithful helpmate. No presidential victory could have brought her to me and no defeat can take her from me. I have been blessed with a family. My children are with me to make glad the declining years of their mother and myself. When you first knew me they called me in derision "The Boy Orator of the Platte." I have outlived that title and my grandchildren are now growing up about me. I repeat that I have been fortunate indeed. I have been abundantly rewarded for what little I have been able to do, and my ambition is not so much to hold any office, however great, as it is to know my duty and to do it either in public life or as a private citizen.

"But, my friends, victory would be robbed of much of its sweetness if it were won outside of Nebraska entirely; that victory would be robbed of much of its sweetness if my little precinct at Normal did not contribute to it. My friends, I shall be among you. It will make the stay more pleasant if I can feel that this city has at last relieved me of the sneers and criticisms that are cast at me when I travel away. And, my friends, I simply want to say this: If you among whom I have lived, who have known my every word and thought and act, if you believe me worthy of that high office I will swear in your presence that no man who votes for me will ever have occasion to be ashamed of the vote he casts.'

And no one who ever cast a vote for William Jennings Bryan is ashamed of it.

REBUKE TO HONEST POLITICS.

The result of the election from a national standpoint can only be viewed in an ominous light by advocates of reform and honest politics. Walter Wellman's ante-election statement that the republican national committee were being flooded with money and that they admitted they were going to buy the election, finds ample verification in the result. In New York city alone are 500,000 unemployed, the greater part of whom are without food or shelfer. Among these and the floaters of the lodging houses the republican slush fund found ready Esaus, whose political birthright was searcely worth the mess of pottage that bought it.

In every large industrial center of the east and middle west the same condition prevailed. In addition to this, the president of the United States, for the first time in the history of the country, dragged the dignity of his high office into the mire of the low ward politician by rushing headlong into the campaign, and by using the great machinery of his office with its hundreds of thousands of employes, in the support of a party candidate,

When such men as Joe Cannon, the special advocate in congress of every robber trust in the country, are reelected by overwhelming pluralities over the united opposition of every church and labor organization in his distriet, there is small wonder that the great Commoner, the man whose every utterance rings with truth and sincerity and whose every thought has been for the weal of the common people, should go down to defeat.

The great love feast of the special interests will be continued for four more fat years, but they should remember that it was in the midst of the feast that Belshazzar saw the writing on the wall.

The triumph of plutocracy seems complete. Taft de feats Bryan, Gumshoe Bill Stone defeats Joseph W. Folk, and Uncle Joe Cannon gets an increased plurality. Decency and reform are spat upon and the purification of politics remains an "irridescent dream."

How about this morning's Mail being an open, flagrant, intentional violation of the corrupt practice law? And distributed free as a campaign dodge on election day at Mr. Hamilton's expense?

One vote in Jackson county was east for Hearst's candidate, Hisgen. E. E. Miner of Gold Hill is to blame for it.

A Map of Jackson County

The Tribune and Southern Oregonian is having made at great expense a fine, colored, lithographed map of Jackson county,

This map will show all cities, towns and villages, rivers and waterways, section and survey lines, railroads and projected railroads, wagon roads, forest reserve boundaries, election precincts and other data needed by everyone. All townships shown in colors.

This up-to-date map will be ready for distribution some time in December. It will be sold only through The Tribune and Southern Oregonian.

This will be your only chance to secure a good map of Jackson county, as all map editions are out of print and plates were destroyed in the San Francisco fire, necessitating new plates made at an enormous expense.
