

ANTIPODES ARE AFTER APPLES

Australia Would Prefer American Apples - Prices Important Factor

"There is a market in Australia for Oregon apples," says R. F. Hoskins of Portland in the Telegram. "Thus far the apple-growers of this state have made little or no effort to open up markets for their fruit in that part of the world, for the reason mainly that the demand in this country has been sufficient to take all the first class apples produced in the state, and at good prices to the producers."

"But there are apples in this state, and large quantities of them, that are not such as to sell readily at home at fancy prices. That is true this year, as it is every year and it might be profitable for some of the growers or dealers to investigate market possibilities in Australia. For the most part Australians have a preference for the Ben Davis and other sorts like it in character and keeping qualities and there is a demand in the island continent now for considerable quantities of the fruit."

"Only apples that are known to be first-class keepers could be shipped to Australia to advantage. The Ben Davis, which in quality falls short of some other Oregon apples, is one of the best keepers, and on this account could be sent across the Pacific easily. A good many orchards of this sort are grown in this state every year, and since they do not usually bring top prices here, Australia may in time prove a good market for them."

Prices Important Factor
"But prices are an important factor in business with Australia, because of the chance always of shipments being injured to some extent in the long voyage. If growers here will take the prices that could reasonably be offered large consignments could be made to Sydney and Melbourne every year. They could go by way of either San Francisco or Vancouver."

With Orileys, Kings, Newtowns, Baldwins, Rome Beauties and other favorite sorts the local market for the time seems to be overstocked, and while prices now are relatively low, it is predicted in some quarters that there will have to be some reductions if the big and growing stocks are moved. Receipts have been heavy for a month and they are increasing in size daily. Some of the stores are now about full. For all but the finest Spitzenburgs, which are quoted at $2 to $2.50 a box, the top prices are $1.75 to $2, and more are selling daily at $1.25 to $1.50 than above these figures. The Oregon crop this year was a big one, and the size of it is now beginning to be felt by the local trade.

FRUIT INSPECTOR IN JOSEPHINE ORCHARDS

Fruit Inspector H. C. Bateham filed his report on Monday, showing that during the month of October he personally inspected 200 orchards, large and small, covering something like 1127 acres of land. Of these 200 orchards by far the majority had some scale but in most cases only a little, showing that the Sampson spray, which is being generally used, is doing work in eradicating this pest. About one person in twenty fails to see much result in spraying and in such cases it is invariably due to a lack of pruning off dead branches, rough bark or lack of thoroughness in applying the spray. In 23 orchards evidence of pear blight was found, the most of which had already been destroyed. Forty-one orchards were found with no serious pests or diseases.—Courier.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Just Out of College."

The engagement of "Just Out of College" at the Medford theatre on Monday, November 16th, will doubtless attract a large audience. It is said to be bubbling over with characteristic fun and the hearers are kept in a state of continuous hilarity throughout the performance. "Just Out of College" will be staged with the adequate attention to details as well as general effect that marked the original production at the Lyceum theatre, New York. The music is catchy and the stage setting brilliant. The first act is laid in the office of the Pickering Perfect Pickle company; the second is at the pure food exposition, and the last in the waiting room of a railway station, which gives Mr. Ade ample opportunity to introduce many new and original types. The sale of seats for the opening performance begins at Hoskins' drug store tomorrow (Tuesday) morning at 9:30 o'clock. Tuesday and Wednesday will be for subscribers only, and if you want to get in on the first choice of seats, better see Manager Hazelrigg today and have your name added to the subscription list. Beginning Thursday morning, the sale of $1 and $2 seats will be open to the general public.

"The Actophone" at the Grand.

The new Actophone moving pictures at the Grand are drawing immense crowds of satisfied amusement lovers. The pictures are very realistic, taken in conjunction with the speaking parts, and it is quite like attending grand opera or vaudeville, as the case may be, to see and hear these marvelous moving and speaking and singing pictures. The management announce the famous singer, Caruso, as one of the attractions for this evening's program.

At the Bijou.

One of those big attractions at the Bijou tonight. A thrilling western romance, the kind that always takes, is included in tonight's program. The cowboys are alive and keep things stirring.

"A Southern Romance" is another subject of exceptional merit. The scenes and characters are typical, and a most interesting story is carried out. A comic entitled "The Washerwoman's Revenge" is the big laugh producer of the season. Don't forget the big attraction tonight at the Bijou.

Dr. Seely Will Referee.

Dr. E. B. Seely will referee the wrestling bout this evening between Jack Welsh of the Twin cities and W. K. West of this city. Both of the boys are in splendid trim and lovers of sport should turn out well.

Wrestling is one of the most ancient sports and one which tests men to the utmost, but still is lacking in brutality. Both of the principals in tonight's bout are confident of winning.
