APPLE MOVEMENT IS TOO LIBERAL

Those growers who have anticipated some good prices on apples are doomed to disappointment from the present outlook, at least says the Journal. Far too liberal supplies of apples are coming at this time, most of them being being from the Hood River section. While practically none of the arrivals consist of eastern shipping stock, much better quality is shown in arrivals from every place than during recent years. While some ordinary quality fruit is coming forward and sells at quite low figures, there is little of that rotten, wormy and scrubby looking stuff now putting in appearance which usually causes the price of good apples to drop. To date there has been but little change in the price of apples along Front street, because Front street is making every effort to hold up the price. There are two reasons for this. The first and primary reason is the fact that Front street has bought heavily of apples, and therefore cannot afford to slash too deeply into quotations. On the other hand, it is the desire of the commission trade to save shippers from loss, for down on the street the trade seems to be of the opinion that just so many boxes and cars of apples will be consumed, whether the market is at a certain price or 25c lower.

Depend Upon Future Receipts.
However, the state of the market is rather critical just now, and it would not take much to cause a severe break in values. Arrivals of apples have been so heavy that all available warehouse space in the wholesale district has been filled with the fruit, and the docks still contain liberal holdings. Therefore the limit of the intake has about been reached, and unless there is a rapid decline in the inward movement growers are liable to see prices that will not pay the cost of transportation. At this time the very best fruit can not be sold over $1.75 to $2 a box, and it takes a well-selected and highly colored besides a Hood River packed Spitzenberg to bring these figures. What is ordinarily called first-class apples in this market will not range over $1.25 to $1.50, the latter price being exceptional. Very good apples are today selling at $1 to $1.10 a box, and some ordinary stuff down as low as 50c, with the top around 75c.
