"The outlook for the comng senson," said Mr. Batcham, "is ter than ever and am sure that next car will see more good orchards that ver, and the quality and quantity of the fruit will be much improved."

Pollowing is a summary of his report to the county court:
Since being appointed fruit inspector,
September 15, 1908, I have personally ing fruit trees aggregating thus far about 1600 neres, only about three fourths of the county being covered as yes. Of these 450 orelands, 125 have been builty negleterd and will have to bave that ough work does in the mwith in 60 days or they must be pulled out. Contrary to the prediction of some men I have found 90 orchards with no seri om pests or fungus discovers. There are 50 cases of pear blight so far discovered which must be cleaned out at once and of course many of our townspeople the trees watched carefully next spring
