Hanford Good Support Poor

Charles B. Hanford deserved a large house on Saturday evening to witness his portrayal of that wonderful character Skiblock. His support served a smaller one. Miss Drofnak as Portia was deplorable; Eugene Ordway as Bassanio was lamentable; John M. Kline as Gratiano was woeful. The only actors with a semblance of art, aside from Mr. Hanford himself, were Andrew H. Tombs as Launcelot, and the helpers back of the stage, who represented the mob. The others were execrable. Mr. Hanford himself is entitled to considerable credit. He has brains enough to surround himself with a lot of cheap junk, hence causing his particular star of genius to shine out as "a good deed in a naughty world." His interpretation of Shakespeare's greedy character, the Jew, shows much study, though his work is much better in the storming of Petruchio of the "Taming of the Shrew." It is as Kate in this play that Miss Drofnak scores her greatest success. The scenery which Hanford carries with him is really worth seeing. By being generous it might be possible to say that between Mr. Hanford himself, the magnificent lines of the play, the scenery, the few moments with Launcelot, and the music by the house orchestra, the audience got value received. But as one man remarked, (allegedly to be sure, but true—"Give, Mahe! ain't it awful?")

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Director of the Inauguration. Plans for the ceremonies attendant on the induction of President Elect Taft into office include the biggest military display ever seen at a presidential inauguration. The army and navy, working with Chairman Stettin, have arranged for a parade and review of several thousand soldiers, fresh from the evacuation of Cuba, and almost an equal number of bluejackets from their triumphant trip around the world. The army will be headed by Major General Barry, commanding the Cuban army of pacification, and his entire staff. The navy section of the parade will be headed by Rear Admiral Sperry and all the admirals and captains of his fleet. Major General J. Franklin Bell as grand marshal will be in supreme command at the head of the column. Edward J. Stettin, chairman of the inaugural committee, is a native of the District of Columbia and experienced in handling big affairs of the kind. Four years ago he was treasurer of the inaugural committee, a position requiring tact as well as ability. Mr. Stettin was prominent in the financial and business life of the capital, being president of the Union Trust company and director of several other large financial institutions.

EDWARD J. STETTIN, CHAIRMAN OF THE INAUGURAL COMMITTEE.

The Sultan of Morocco. Mulai Hafid, the new sultan of Morocco, is a busy man. He rises with the sun and, save for a short siesta, seems never to have any leisure time at all. He makes a point of attending personally to all state business, holds reviews of his troops frequently, receives deputations from all parts of the country, listens almost daily to translations of long extracts from the European newspapers and meets out rewards and punishments. He receives many presents. A fox correspondent tells how the other day gifts in the shape of sacks of gold, bales of silk, spices and jewelry poured in through the palace gates, and the sultan received the value of something like $125,000 in the course of this one morning's reception. Among the offerings was a splendid ruby ring which seemed to take the royal fancy, for he forthwith put it on his finger and wore it during the remainder of the day.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Herbert Livingston Satterlee, the new assistant secretary of the navy, is a son-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan. Mr. Satterlee knows the navy department fairly well. He has been a member of the board of visitors to Annapolis and is now president of the Naval Reserve association. During the war with Spain he was a volunteer lieutenant assigned to the naval intelligence bureau in New York and on the staff of the late Captain John R. Bartlett, chief of the bureau. He served from July to November of that commission.

The new assistant secretary was graduated from Columbia in 1883 and distinguished himself in the School of Political Science, where he received a degree. He was admitted to the bar in 1885 and entered the law office of Everts, Choate & Beaman. In the following year he became secretary to Senator Everts. He was active in the organization of the naval militia, and when he became a colonel on the staff of Governor Morton he was appointed the navigating officer of the First naval battalion.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Almond Delight Pie. Make a rich pastry and fill with the following mixture: Blanch and chop fine one cupful of almonds. Put one cupful of granulated sugar moistened with one teaspoonful of water into a frying pan. Place over a slow fire until melted, then add the chopped almonds, stirring briskly until the mixture turns a golden brown. Turn this out on the crust in the pan and spread quickly before it cools. Beat three eggs, add two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and one and one-half cupfuls of milk, pour over the almonds and bake in a hot oven at first. Cover with a meringue of the white of egg and two tablespoonfuls of sugar.

Moth Patches and Freckles. Colorless lime is a good freckle destroyer. Anoint the freckles with the essence by means of a small cotton ball dipped in or a comb made by twisting a piece of absorbent cotton into a brush. Apply to each freckle daily and morning until the skin is red, but not too irritated. The pigment of the freckle is dissolved in the first layer of the skin, and this must be destroyed in order to get rid of the freckle. Lemon juice applied to the skin is one of the best means of keeping the skin clear and white and preventing the deposit of colorless matter which makes the bleacher of most patches and freckles.

Lemon Shampoo. Pour the juice of three lemons upon two ounces of salts of tartar, and about two quarts of warm water and use as an ordinary shampoo. They will make the hair soft and fluffy, and is an excellent cleanser. If one has sufficient time at her disposal it is a good idea to boil the juice, boiling the salts with it. This makes a stronger solution of the lemon. A few drops of perfume or attar of roses added will give a faint scent upon the hair. The mixtures of salts of tartar should never be allowed to stand. It should be mixed fresh for every shampoo.

Washing Thin Glasses. One often will find that thin glasses are difficult to wash and leave clear and unclouded. Wash them in hot water and pure white soap and rinse them immediately in water of the same temperature and set them aside to drain. Do not wipe them until they are nearly dry and then polish with a clean towel. Clean tissue paper is excellent for polishing glasses. They are more apt to break if you dry them while they are wet, and they are also more inclined to be cloudy.

A Washday Convenience. An excellent device that would be of great assistance to the housewife in the combined clothes and clothes-line receptacle herewith shown. Ordinarily the wet clothes are carried from clothes and clothes-line holder. The washline to the yard in an ordinary wicker basket. The dripping water collects in the bottom of the basket, soon rotting and destroying it. The basket shown here is made of galvanized wire to prevent rusting. The mesh being wider, the water from the wet clothes readily drains off. At one end is a receptacle for the receipting of cloths, while suitable straps are secured to the back by which it can be supported at some convenient point. These straps are also used to carry the receptacle.

The contemplated fortifications involve an expenditure of 50,000,000 kroner ($1,000,000) and construction of a score of torpedo boats and a half dozen submarines also is contemplated.
