ern civilization. There is not a corporation in the country that does not employ the ablest men they can obtain to produce the right impression in the public mind on the article which it has to sell. There is no difference in the advertising of the goods on the shelf of the merchant than in advertising the advantages of a community. The intending settler brings you wealth in the same manner that the intending customer brings wealth to the merchant. Advertising is essential to both, and in a growing city like this the city as a whole should more certainly enter the advertising field than the merchant.

Many After Settlers.

Medford is not alone in the world in the matter of trying to secure the settler. There are many towns in this country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, where activity is manifest in securing them. All these towns are your competitors. Many of them have schools and colleges and climate and fruit land and numerous other talking points. If your competitor is active you must be active. If you expect to hold your trade Medford must always expend every dollar she can to rake and scrape to advertise her advantages. The moment the town would let up, that moment the town begins to fall and its growth becomes small. The secret of Medford's road to wealth lies in publicity—that is in advertising her advantages.

Describing Towns.

Mr. Buchanan has been preparing a series of letters upon the Pacific Coast for his daily, describing the country as he views it. The letters are not in the line of advertising and are purely given from his own view point—as he sees the country. He has prepared some interesting material upon the development and growth of Los Angeles and made an exhaustive study of the future of that metropolis. As he passed up the Coast he has given each valley a review of its resources and it is presumed that the Rogue River country will be touched upon by his pen next.

THEY PAID PROMPTLY.

Mr. R. A. Holmes, City.
Dear Sir:—If a recommendation from a customer would be of any value in your office, allow me to express my appreciation of the manner in which my recent loss by fire was adjusted, by yourself and the representatives of the various companies with whom I held insurance.

An adjustment of 100 cents on the dollar for the amount insured, and check covering the above amount within four days after the final adjustment was attached and made a part of each policy I held.

In my estimation the foregoing speaks well for the companies you represent and their methods of procedure, which are the vital points to be considered by the insured.

Thanking you for the personal interest in my behalf, I remain, Respectfully yours,
W. C. GREEN.

A BIG DEMAND FOR OREGON APPLES

porters are inclined to believe that the government might withdraw this requirement without endangering domestic fruit trees, since apples rejected at Hamburg have been shipped to Scandinavia, Denmark and England without having caused a spread of the disease.

Should Be Well Packed.

Apples should be packed in standard barrels or, if of special quality, they should be wrapped in paper and packed in cases of one bushel. Cars should be taken not to ship short-weight barrels, which now come from some districts, as they may be classified for duty at 5 marks per 100 kilos ($1.19 per 220 pounds) instead of 3.2 marks (76c). Barrels are almost invariably intended to contain three bushels, but evaporation and settling, pending shipment to Europe, sometimes causes a space to form in the top of the barrel, which is then filled with paper in order to obtain a tight package. The German tariff law applies the rate of 5 marks to double packed apples, which is always applied to paper-wrapped apples in boxes. By interpretation this classification has been applied to the short barrels described, the paper packing being regarded as a second wrapping. Protests have been filed against this decision, but without effect. Boxed apples not individually wrapped should be packed in cases without linings, as they then secure the low rate of 3.2 marks (76c) per 100 kilos. It is always profitable to forward high-grade apples in individual wrappings and lined cases, even though the duty be 5 marks.

American apples arrive between November and March and Australian apples arrive between March and July. The principal Australian apples are the Cleopatra, the Johnathan and the Munroe Favorite. The Australian apples are wrapped individually in tissue paper and are packed in one-bushel cases. They bring 8 to 20 marks ($1.90 to $4.76) per case.

Of late a number of shipments from California, Oregon and Washington have reached Hamburg via England which were effected with the San Jose scale. They were chiefly Newtown Pippins, Johnathans and Winesaps, the later a very popular fruit from Oregon and Washington. Prices range between 8 and 11 marks ($1.90 to $2.61) per one-bushel case for California Pippins and 11 to 15 marks ($2.61 to $3.57) per one-bushel case for apples from Oregon and Washington.
