NEW STOCK YARDS AID TO RANCHERS

On September 15 New Stock Yards Will Be Opened at Portland.

The new Union stock yards at Portland will be opened for business on September 15. No formal proceedings will mark the event, but a public celebration may be held at a later date.

The opening of the Portland Union stockyards is an epoch in the live-stock industry of the Pacific northwest. The creation of a place of barter and sale, where there is every day in the year an active demand for all of the livestock offered, means much to the farmers and ranchers of this section of the United States. The nearest market of the class is at Denver. The establishment of livestock markets such as afforded by the Portland Union stockyards has added millions of dollars to the value of the livestock tributary to Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Fort Worth and Denver, and history will repeat itself at Portland.

Livestock sells every business day in the year and the cash that is paid out to the farmers and ranchers filters through every channel of the country's commerce. There is no better way to get grain to market and get a good price for it than in the hide of a meat animal, a method of marketing that has made the demand for the animals the farmers and stockmen of this section will doubtless raise and properly feed enough livestock to meet the rapidly increasing demand.

The Portland Union stockyards are as complete and as modern as experience and money can make them. They are commodious, have sheds for sheep and hogs, the floors are of cement and the water and sewer systems are perfect.
