DR. LOWELL PLANS A GREATER HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 8.—With the induction of A. Lawrence Lowell as Harvard university's head next month several potent reforms will be begun. Most of these will be outlined in Dr. Lowell's address, which will be delivered from a monster rostrum erected in front of the university offices October 6.

He purposes to secure world-wide recognition for the Harvard degree, his idea being that the sheepskin means something more than a high percentage in athletic achievement or a luxurious recreation for rich men's sons with aimless ambitions. He wants the Harvard degree to stand supreme in the educational world, and his best efforts will be put forth to make it so. He is not a dreamer and his views are directed at all times toward the practical side.

for the Oregon Central & Eastern from Brownsville east.

Proposed Railroad Route.

The line will pass through the center of the Calapooia valley, touching Crawfordsville and Halley, and the promoters say that construction work will commence as soon as it is possible to arrange matters for work to begin. It is proposed to begin construction work at Brownsville and build east as rapidly as possible.

Franklin T. Griffith stated recently that the proposed road is to run from Albany to Ontario, on the O. R. & N. in eastern Oregon.

The three men named in the directorate of the company are Franklin T. Griffith, Dorsey B. Smith and C. H. Warner. Griffith has handled the railroad end of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company's legal business for some years. Smith was formerly assistant general superintendent of the O. R. & N. company and is now general manager for the Open River Transportation company in close sympathy with a project for a railroad from Ontario to Coos Bay.

Through Calapooia Pass.

It is a fact known to many railroad men that the most feasible pass across the Cascade mountains from central Oregon is what is known as the Calapooia pass. It is also equally as well known that this pass has been thoroughly investigated and is now subject for the thoughts of the men who are at present laying the foundations for future railroad building in Oregon. The construction of this line would open up a rich field of timber in eastern Linn county and Lane county, and would give the Blue River mining district the impetus that it needs to bring it to the front as one of the great districts of western Oregon.
