STATUS OF THE CALIFORNIA CROP

The California Fruit Distributors issued the following weekly letter on October 5:

The following gives the number of cars of deciduous fruit shipped to all points by all members of this company for the week (seven days) ending Monday night, October 4, 1909:

Pears, 28 cars—The shipment of this fruit has been somewhat more than was anticipated one week ago, but there is practically nothing left in this line at the present time still to go forward.

Grapes, 413½ cars—The grape shipment shows a further decline over last week. The major portion of the crop has now been sent forward. There are considerable quantities, however, yet to go, and of the very best quality that we have had during the season. Cornichon grapes are maturing nicely and will be in splendid shipping condition in ten days or two weeks. The Emperors are also doing well, and there will be a good supply of this favorite shipping grape which will be available after Tokays are done.

The quality of the Emperor grape promises to be better this year than for several seasons.

Weather—Further rains fell during the latter part of last week, and on Saturday night and Sunday we had the heaviest fall of the season. This has had the effect of retarding picking and it will be several days before the volume of shipments is as great as it has been in the past. In some sections considerable damage has resulted, and it will probably have the effect of materially shortening up the shipments. Cornichons and Emperors escaped without injury.
