An Insecure Hand-hold Lets a Brakeman Fall to Destruction.

This morning about 4:30 o'clock, as a freight car was being switched, one of the most awful accidents that has happened in this vicinity for a long time, occurred.

The victim was a brakeman, a son of Conductor Kearney. A flying switch was being made and the brakeman was holding on to the end of the car with one hand and with the other he was to draw out the coupling pin. The support to which he was holding gave way, letting him fall beneath the tender of the engine. He was instantly killed.

There will be a Students' Reception November 22, to which the people of the city and country will be invited to take part by bringing cakes, sandwiches, pickles, etc. A lap supper will follow the programme.

John M. Bloss, President of the State Agricultural College, visited the school Tuesday. He was well pleased with the outlook of the school, and the students were well pleased with his visit. He addressed the students in the chapel, and his words were an inspiration to young men and women in pursuit of knowledge.

A large number of students will enter school this month. The enrollment now stands 110. Those entering school this
