ASHLAND, . . . WEDNESDAY, NOV. 20, 1895.

EDITORIAL.

We wish to thank our amateur exchanges that have so heartily congratulated us upon our success as publishers, and wish them the same success.

January 1, 1896, the ADVERTISER will be enlarged to double its present size.

All present unexpired twenty-five cents subscriptions will be continued with the enlarged edition.

To-day we placed an order with the American Type Founders Co., Palmer & Rey Branch, of Portland for a large stock of printing material, embracing fifty pounds of body type, the latest styles of job type and ornaments, brass rule of several kinds, leads, composing sticks, new patent quoins, type cases, a large supply of black and colored inks, and several minor articles. This addition of stock will increase the facilities of our office to proportions second to none in the city. When you want the best work in Ashland, bring your orders to the ADVERTISER,—the most modernly equipped office in the city.
