From Weekly Climate and Crop Bulletin

CROPS.—Clover and alfalfa are ready to cut, but owing to the rain shown, haying has not commenced yet. Save the delay to haying, the weather has been very favorable. The two weeks of dry weather allowed most all the delayed spring sowing to be finished, gardens planted, etc., and the soil to dry out, hence the showers were welcome and beneficial. The warm weather produced a too rapid growth, and the change in the weather has checked the rapid growth, and as a result, makes a firmer and more healthy stand. Fall and winter-sown wheat is in boot; spring grain, except that sown within the past few weeks, is up, and is making an excellent growth. Corn is growing well, but would be benefited by more warmth.
