FRIDAY, APRIL 10, 1891.

ROAD TO McMinnville.—Last Saturday three gentlemen, C. J. Smith, D. A. Cravin and O. A. Kramer, were out on their bicycles when it was proposed that they ride to McMinnville...

REMOVING INSURANCE.—The city council is wise in demanding that the insurance companies shall have supervision of the erection of the new water works in this city if it is to have a fire protection.

TRICYCLE RIDERS.—The following persons are either expert or another rider on that elegant machine the bicycle in Independence: C. J. Smith, Warren Cresney, H. D. Walker, Claire Irvine, H. R. Patterson, D. H. Craven, H. H. Jaspersen, J. W. Buxter, L. L. Van Nortwick, L. C. Gilmore, Curt Hawley, M. A. Van Nortwick, Ed Williams, Chas. Irvine, John Johnson and J. W. Baker.

A FINE HORSE.—Ones, No. 8461, record 2:29, will be at Independence on Wednesdays of each week. All lovers of good horses are invited to call and see him.

READY FOR BUSINESS.—I wish to announce to the public that my saw and door factory is now ready for business and prepared to furnish sashes, doors, blinds and moldings to repair work, etc., at the lowest living prices consistent with good work.

TRICYCLES.—Wait for Fred T. Merrill's catalogue; out in a few days. Over 400 fine, ball bearing, hollow frame, warranted steel bicycles, from $5 up; cash or installments.

SETTLE UP.—A. B. Griggs wishes all those indebted to him to call at the Pioneer market and pay the amount due him to Mr. J. R. Irvine, who will receive for the same.

ATHLETIC ENTERTAINMENT.—On Saturday night the Mounmouth young ladies and gentlemen appeared at the opera house, and gave a pleasing entertainment to a fair sized audience.

A fine assortment of garden seeds at Henkle & Walker.

Oregon hams and bacon at Henkle & Walker.

Some of our friends were in to see us from Airle this week and gave us a hint of two or three prospective weddings in that lively burg, but would not give us any names. Bro. Ford will probably be up that way to get the contract for marrying the lot at reduced rates. Look out for his coming.

Independence is undergoing a period of anxious expectancy awaiting the boom consequent upon what some one else may do. All towns are just like this one, but some individuals are different. Mark our prediction—more money will be made in Independence this summer than ever.

Quick & Son have on hand a large quantity of pure Japan buckwheat which he will sell at six cents per pound. For sale at Henkle & Walker's, Independence, and at Mr. Quick's residence near Suver.

Rev. C. M. Hill, home Baptist missionary of Oregon will preach in the city next Sunday both morning and evening. Rev. Hill is a fine speaker and will entertain and interest his hearers.

Mr. R. A. Fuller from Portland who is a thorough implement and vehicle man from several years' experience has also accepted a position with Goodman & Bouty and has moved his family to town.

Well the new school house and bank are both finished, but J. D. I. is not through feeding the hungry yet, so come all ye that are hungry and he will sell you goods cheaper than dirt.

Messrs. Lee & Butler are much gratified at the success attending their efforts with W. E. Dalton, who was in a very low condition when they took hold of him. He is now convalescing.

J. W. Buxter has been moving his household goods this week to his new house near the public school. He has a very slightly location and is much pleased with his purchase.

The Big 4 band, of Mounmouth, will give a basket sociable at the opera hall, Mounmouth, on Saturday, April 14. The Big 4 band will furnish music, and a good time is anticipated.

Remember when in Salem to call at Strong's restaurant, now Westcott & Irwin, and get a meal not to be excelled on the Pacific coast for 25 cents, 1271 Commercial street.

J. M. Crowley, who has been attending medical college at St. Louis, has graduated, is now honored with an M. D. Title, and is at home with his parents at Mounmouth.

The electric light company cannot complain of our patronage in this office since we pay three dollars a month for our office lamps and have not used them for a month.

M. M. Ellis is now mayor of Dallas, and A. V. Snyder auditor and police judge. John Grant is the marshal. Coward still allowed to roam at large on the streets.

Mounmouth has raised about $5000 to pay off the debt on the Normal school. Other friends of the school are asked to contribute the balance of the debt.

J. R. Cooper and wife were called to Eastern Oregon on Thursday, to attend to Pearl who is quite sick in Wasco county with his uncle.

J. F. O'Donnell calls special attention to his new stock of sporting goods, consisting of guns, revolvers, fishing tackle, split bamboo rods, etc.

Rev. D. V. Poling was delegated by the conference of the Evangelical church to preach at Corvallis and Independence the coming year.

J. F. O'Donnell has secured J. S. Ryne, a practical plumber and tinner of Portland, who is recommended to be one of the best.

Miss Grace Scriber, who is said to be a very entertaining reader, will appear in Independence some time in May, at the opera house.

Miss Mary Graves is visiting at the residence of J. S. Cooper, and Miss Hattie Richardson at the home of Miss Esiee Richardson.

Remember Henkle & Walker when buying your groceries, provisions etc. as they carry a full line and sell cheap as the cheapest.

J. L. Stockton has just received an immense line of trunks and valises which he will sell at the very lowest prices.

Wm. Brandt, of Portland, who is brakeman on the West Side road was visiting Mark Holmes near McCoy last week.

Major Scott, the great temperance lecturer will deliver an address in the Christian church next Saturday evening, and election of officers.

Mr. L. F. Laughary is quite proud of a fine mer chain pipe presented to him by Mr. I. A. Miller, of this city.

Over five thousand dollars have been secured at Mounmouth for the Normal school, and still the ball is rolling.

Wm. Kerr, of Parker, is in town on Tuesday; he is about to branch out as a traveling Photographer.

J. L. Stockton carries the finest line of trinkets in Polk county, call and see them when at Independence.

Mr. Eli Crowley, who has been quite sick, is so far recovered as to be able to down town this week.

Dave Gelwick always has on hand fresh candies, Key West cigars and tropical fruits in season.

Last week a gentleman from this city called on Mr. R. Kohler, who is manager of the Southern Pacific railroads in Oregon, and requested an interview. His request was granted, and among other things Mr. Kohler said: You know I told your railroad committee that we should order it built then is when it will be built. You know I told your railroad committee from Corvallis, Independence and McMinnville that as soon as our heavy expenditures in the Cow Creek canyon ceased that the company would turn its attention to such extension, and you know that we have spent a great deal of money there, and then the stringency in the money market effects us as well as the rest of the people. Yes that railroad will be built, but I don't know just when.

You say that if the road were built through your timber could be saved into lumber and shipped to Salt Lake, Denver and other points, and as a consequence your town would be a large shipping point. Where is that timber? You say at Falls City and the mountains back of it; how are you going to get it to our road? By means of a branch road? You say the extension would be an additional incentive for its building, and that such freight would be clear gain because we get no freight of that kind. All such facts are duly considered by our company. We are always glad to get information of such a nature. Good day Sir.

On Tuesday a party consisting of R. Kohler, Superintendent Fields, Engineer Groundahl, etc. came over the Narrow gauge roads and back from Independence by special to Portland.

Taking all things together our people may yet hope that something will be done this year.

HIRED A THEATRE.

A Dressmaker of Gotham Displeas Her Gossips.

The evolution of the art of advertising is something curious and interesting, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Particularly in this case when it is in a woman's fertile brain that it evolves. The other day there was a dressmaking establishment opened on a fashionable thoroughfare.

The dressmaker hired a theatre, she set it with palms and flowers. She engaged an orchestra and she sent out tickets for a matinee. She got an audience so big that "standing room only" might have been posted if only there had been standing room.

Then to the strains of "I Drempt I Dwelt in Marble Hall" she posed against paste-board pillars and under portiers and let the women spectators dream they to wore robes of frocks and chained vessels and serfs at their sides.

Her methods revealed study of feminine nature and an appreciation of the taste for realism. She rode a live horse on the stage to show a riding habit, had herself lifted off by a devoted attendant and stood, skirts in hand, feeding the pretty animal sugar and setting forth her prices.

She had baskets of flowers passed up to her over the footlights, and she fingered the curls attached to the handles and studied them visibly and smiled at the audience and said it was "a woman's curiosity."

She went shopping for her spectators and she paid calls and drank tea and gave receptions, and finally she said she would place a $5 frock by the side of one costing $5,000; then she came forward in ballroom gorgeousness leading by the hand a wee tot of a girl.

The audience looked from the satin and lace and jewelry to the curly-headed wife in pink, two passions were satisfied in the same glance and they split their gloves clapping hands. Then she hid her little daughter would entertain the ladies, and the child scraped some wavering strains on a small ribbon-tied violin. The women dissolved in tender raptures, and felt as if they had seen "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and Mrs. Langtry on a joint strolling tour.

Such a dressmaker is almost up to losing jewels or quarrelling with her husband or stopping a runaway horse or eloping, all for the good of business. These fin de siecle days are interesting.

The Rate on Property for the Coming Year.

Pendleton, March 31. Assessor Brannin, who has been industriously making inquiries to discover the basis of assessment in other counties of the state, gives The Oregonian correspondent the following statement of values the different assessors heard from, intended putting on property this year. Josephine—100 per cent. Columbia—Real estate, the same as last year; machinery, 50 per cent; all stock, 75 per cent; mortgages, 50 per cent; money and accounts, 100 per cent.

Polk—75 per cent. Benton—Land, 50 per cent; money and mortgages, 100 per cent; stock and merchandise, 75 per cent. Coos—60 per cent. Douglas—Less than 75 per cent. Grant—100 per cent. Linn—Same as last year. Lane—70 per cent. Washington—50 per cent. Morrow—Near 75 per cent. Jackson—Higher than last year. Multnomah—One third to one-half on realty; mortgages, 50 per cent. Clackamas—Nearly 50 per cent. Union—Average.

Wasco—Undecided, but will assess at 100 per cent, if people will not oppose it. Tillamook—Higher than last year. The Yamhill county assessor writes Mr. Brannin that the average of the above is nearly 65 per cent, and he will endeavor to assess at that value, except money and mortgages, which he will assess at 90 per cent.

Assessor Brannin intends placing a valuation of 60 per cent on real estate and mortgages in this county, and will assess money, notes and accounts at their face value.

Vinegar and pickles by the pint or gallon at Henkle & Walker.

What determines their value? To arrive at a solution of this question, a computation of the sum in coin which a given amount is capable of being converted into must be fairly estimated. The law prescribes that a given quantity of gold, of a standard fineness, shall enter each of the several gold coin denominations, and so also with silver coin. Were not gold and silver the metals adopted for conversion into money thereby creating a greater demand for these metals for money purposes than for any other uses, the price and value would fluctuate upon as wide a commercial demand. To suffer gold and silver to fluctuate in value as commodities would take from the coin of which it is made, the intrinsic value given to it, provided the value of gold or silver were to recede; and, if it were to advance beyond its normal value, its function of a measure would be disturbed. The creation of money presupposes its endowment with certain functions. It must be a legal tender, that contracts may be adjusted and debts discharged. It must be an immutable measure, by which the computation of sums and payments may be determined. It must possess unchangeable value, that it may be a proper and fixed representative of wealth. It must be interchangeable without loss, for accommodation of the public use. It must be made by the highest authority, an absolute equivalent, to merit public confidence. Money cannot possess one value today and another value tomorrow, and the metals of which money is made must possess an equal stability of value. It is only when the coinage of one or the other metal is discontinued, or limited in quantity by law, or short of its legal tender functions, that the metal so withdrawn from demand is lessened in value. Neither the cast off commodities, nor the service of man, nor the debts of the nation, have any part in the adjustment or determination of the value of gold and silver.

Gold and silver are simply the production of the earth, utilized and chiefly employed for monetary uses, and thereby wrested from the contingencies of trade and barter. The mints of the government coining money under authority determine the value of gold and silver so long as these metals are employed as a monetary circulating medium. Money is a conventional unit, a transmissible token of value, a synonym of law, and without a legal tender property cannot be money, and without a fixed status it ceases to be a measure of value. Laws which sustain and enforce contracts are necessary in all civilized governments. Of what use is such a law in the absence of a legal denomination by which debts, damages, services, and commodities may be measured and paid. Money is the fiat of sovereign power, which to deny is the denial of the powers of Congress to that which it is especially chartered to perform by the constitution. Governmental legislation everywhere prescribes of what money shall consist, and the authority of a government in this cannot be disputed. What say you, readers of the WEST SIDE? S. S.

Oregon's Fruit Interests.

(Cor. Oregonian.)

One who understands the general adaptation of Oregon for fruit production, especially the production of the prune, and the extent of markets will be surprised to learn, according to the statistics of the export trade given in The Oregonian's New Year edition, that the aggregate value of our shipments of green and dried fruits for the year 1890 did not exceed $82,240. Against these figures the wheat and flour exportations are set down at $1,930,655; salmon at $2,178,185; and lumber at $468,900. And within the last year, it is averred, Portland merchants imported 90,000 pounds of prunes that were produced in Europe—prunes inferior in quality to those used in the Willamette valley, now demonstrated to be superior for all varieties of the prune from the Italian districts of prune production. Within the last year, too, every grocer in the state displayed long rows of canned goods, vegetables as well as fruits, and still displays them, bearing trade marks of foreign canners—goods which can be better raised and as well prepared at home.

Already competing railroad lines give us access to the general markets of the country, and the promise is that transportation facilities will improve and extend with the general advancement. Should no great change occur in the general business tendencies of the country, Oregon will be as well supplied with railroads twenty years hence as Ohio now is.

It is now established that fifteen to twenty acres in the Willamette valley, selected soil—of which there are tens of thousands of acres skillfully handled in fruit production, has as great a population-sustaining capacity as from 160 to 200 acres devoted to grain raising and pasturage (that is, would produce as much wealth measured in dollars and cents). The production of prunes and pears—properly drying and boxing the former and getting the latter into the markets in good condition at the proper time, can be made a more profitable business than was cattle raising on the Upper Columbia and Upper Missouri ranges ere it became overstocked; fruit raising here will be sure to grow in importance with the advance of time. Enhancement in real estate values in the California valleys within the last ten years will be paralleled here within the next ten.

There is not the slightest danger of overstocking the markets for fruits, properly prepared for shipment, should every acre in the state adapted to the purpose be cultivated as orchard ground. To begin with, the people, on the average, do not eat half as much fruit as they should, or as they would were it made more available. Fruit eating increases with facilities for reaching the consumer and the resulting cultivating of the appetite for it. This is not a forced conclusion, but it is attested by the dietary habits of all people inhabiting regions in which fruit production is the agricultural pursuit. And there are at this moment fifty millions of the inhabitants of the United States living in districts in which the prunes is considered by the majority an imported luxury, in which it cannot be grown at all, and the population of nearly all these districts is rapidly increasing. Taken to their doors, where it is now possible to do so by rail, a valuation of Oregon fruits amounting to twice the sum derived from the grain, salmon and lumber exportations would be swallowed down almost without making a noticeable difference in the general outlay for subsistence.

I have thought well to submit these facts, that the new interest that seems to have been awakened in fruit production in Oregon may not abate. Every trading point commanding a fruit-raising district of any extent should have its canning and drying establishment, and henceforth every farming household should be prepared to market all the surplus fruit derived from the trees, in marketable condition dried if not green. Every additional tree set out will prove a better investment than money put out at interest compounded. H. N. MAGUIRE.

SMITH—At Airle, Friday, March 27, Mrs. I. P. Smith, aged 54 years. Mrs. Smith was born in Johnson county, Missouri, Dec. 13, 1837. She came to Oregon with her father, F. R. Price, in 1852, and married I. P. Smith in 1861. She leaves two girls and two boys, one daughter being at home, the other married, and living in Whitman county, Wash., the two sons are both in the state of Washington. The remains were interred in the Smith grave yard near Dallas. Thus one by one the pioneers of our state are crossing to the other shore, and soon those who succeed them will know nothing of the privations and hardships of pioneer life in the far west.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS!

OH, MY BACK! STOP IT NOW. SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE. I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 10th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me to such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up again, or to get on my clothes, when I did I was in pain. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and in the afternoon of the 15th of April I was able to get up, and in a few days I am happy to state that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.
