To day is all that we can claim, We known not of to morrow; Then with content, be it our aim, To welcome joy or sorrow.

Our hearts may be bowed down with o Or overflow with hope and joy; Whether the clouds are dark or fair, With thanks, lift up our hearts on

To day we all resigned should be: And if to morrow trouble brings, Shut not our eyes, or try to free From rustle of an agel's wings.

The angel Resignation bears
Most of the burdens of our souls;
While Sympathy will wipe our tears,
And teach us faith and self control.

Accept the blessings, our to-day, Ner eastles build to fail to-morrow; Cast doubt, despair, and wrong away, Look on the bright side, not on sorrow

If shadows fall, expect the sun To day to shine in all its glory, And when its course is fully run, To-morrow will repeat the story.

Brightness and comfort will abound, As hours and days roll swiftly by, If with a prayerful heart we grasp, To-morrow's happ'nings as they fly.

To-day is ours, and nothing more, Depend not on another sun. To infinite love our hearts must soar, To gain the laurels we have won.

To meet with success with poultry we want the hens to lay well when eggs are in demand and bring a good price. In order to accomplish this, fowls must have proper care and attention beforehand—such as plenty of good food, and quite a variety of it, giving soft feed in the fore part of the day, with wheat the last feed at night. Plenty of clean fresh water is one great essential. Another is a clean, comfortable place to roost in, free from filth and vermin, and properly ventilated. Fowls that have plenty of exercise, plenty of the proper kind of food, with comfortable quarters to roost in, give a good return in eggs when they command a good price. Then when eggs are cheap, raise chickens.

Speaking of newspaper men, Rev. Talmage once said: "One of the greatest trials of the newspaper profession that its members are compelled to more of the world than any other profession. Through every newspaper office day after day is found all the vanities that want to be repaid; all the mistakes that want to be corrected; all the dull speakers that want to be thought eloquent; all the meanness that wants to get its wares noticed gratis in the editorial columns in order to save the advertising columns; all the men who want to be set right. Through the editorial and reportorial rooms all the follies and shams of the world are seen day after day, and the temptation is to believe neither God. man, nor woman. It is no surprise to me that in this profession there are found skeptical men. I wonder journalism believes anything."
