Most persons perues thesis books for amusement; but it is obvious that much works as the coe we now present to the public most be full of important marketion. The daughts attending travel in various modes and it various parts of the weight; the characteristics of the poople and countries observed by the adventurous travellers, and what sufferings men may endure, and what contrivit, to surmount the greatest dangers and directly and with most young persons beens of travel are favorites. The names of Mungo Park and others who have encountered terrible d'élections it exploring countries before unknown are familier as "household weetls." Even the fictitious attractions of Robinson Crusoe and Goldiers's Voyage to Lillipat the nost give them the superiority, in the youthful estimation. The desire to seconder lands and other people, besides those among which we are born and reared in common.
