She Knew How It Was Herself.

A substantial looking country woman went into a Woodward avenue furniture store the other day and asked to see a parlor chair.

"How's this one, madam?" inquired the clerk, setting out a weak wicker affair.

She took the chair and shook her head.

"How do you like this heavier one?" he asked, dragging up another style.

She shook it and shook her head.

Then he showed her a lot, each a little heavier than the one rejected, and all were pronounced too light.

"Good heavens, madam," exclaimed the exasperated clerk, "do you want an iron seated brick chair, with a stone foundation?"

"Yes; that's it, that's it," she said eagerly. "You see, my girl Susan has got her clamps onto steady company this fall, and he comes every night, and between 'em they've broke down every chair in the parlor; and now, before I'll have my bran new sofy smashed or the engagement busted, I'll get a chair strong enough to carry two if I have to mortgage my house and farm. I was a gal once myself, and know how it is."

The clerk took her order for a stone foundation style.—Detroit Free Press.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at any drug store, regular size, 50c and $1.00.

SENTIMENTAL SUICIDES.

Hardly a Day Passes But the Morgue ... Hed.

WONDERFUL FEATS OF A DOG.

Orchard Pests Destroyed by Placing Powerful Electric Lamps over the Trees.

Squire Schwab's office was crowded shortly near 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon with friends and acquaintances of the genial magistrate, who had been invited into the squire's office to witness the truly wonderful feats performed by a pet dog that had been attached by Special Constable Burroughs in the case of A. H. Moorman against Henry Weichelman for $71.95.

Weichelman travels for a New York clothing house, and until recently has lived at 113 Clark street. Moorman learned that Weichelman was about to remove to Gotham and immediately brought an attachment suit against him in Squire Schwab's court. When Constable Burroughs went to the Clark street house to attach Weichelman's effects all he found was a beautiful dog, for which the clothing drummer is alleged to have paid $500.

Several children noticed the officer carrying the dog along the street, and told him the dog performed tricks and also smoked cigarettes. When Squire Schwab's office was reached and the magistrate was told of the dog's wonderful instinct he procured a package of cigarettes, and after summoning a number of friends resolved to test the dog's ability as stated above.

A lead pencil was tied to the animal's paw, and upon a sheet of legal cap paper the dog wrote its name—Clancey—in a very legible manner. Through a quill holder the canine smoked several cigarettes and astonished the assembled crowd by expectorating. The dog seemed to enjoy the sport and the cigarette smoke seemed to enliven him as he pranced cheerfully about and amused the crowd by his funny antics. It is alleged that the dog formerly belonged to some English nobleman, from whom he was stolen.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Killing Orchard Pests.

Some time ago the electrical papers described a device which was successfully used in a park at Munich, Bavaria, for the destruction of insects. The insects were attracted by a powerful electric projector, and then drawn down by an exhaust fan to a kind of grinding mill, and after being crushed in which they were mixed with flour and water, baked and used for feeding poultry. Possibly incited by the success of this arrangement, a Washington farmer proposes to wage electric war on the insects that nightly play havoc with the fruit trees in his orchard.

His plan is to have powerful lamps put in at an elevation of a few feet above the tops of his apple trees. Each lamp or burner is to be surmounted by a steel wire screen, umbrella shaped, each alternate wire being charged and the other grounded. When the light is turned on in the evening it will attract the swarms of winged insects, which will dash against the electrically charged screen and be instantly destroyed. The farmer says he can dispense with the elaborate process adopted in Munich for the preparation of food for the fowls, as every member of his poultry yard will be promptly on hand next morning and will help himself.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Sentimental Suicides.

The crop of suicides is larger this year than ever before. Hardly a day passes that the morgue does not claim several victims, and the coroners are kept busy issuing permits for the burial of aristocratic suicides who shed their mortal shackles amid wealth and luxury. It is remarkable that these unfortunates should choose the summer time for their ghastly work, when life seems to offer so much to the weary, the oppressed and the disappointed. I asked one of the keepers of the morgue today how he accounted for this.

His reply confirmed my own opinion. Said he: "You notice that most of the 'stiffs' are women, don't you? Well, them's all 'sentimental suicides.' The gals has been disappointed in love or suthin o' that kind, and when they sees other folks enjoying life—th' singin o' th' birds, th' flowers, an all that sort o' thing, ye know—it makes them feel wuss'n ord'nary, an they go off'n jumps into th' river or cuts their throats."—New York Cor. St. Louis Republic.

Snap Shot with a Whip.

F. M. Pitcher and A. L. Beckwith are two farmers who are both well known in Americus. Tuesday they were together in a buggy coming here, and when they were near Joe Roney's place a chicken hawk lit on the side of the road. "Look at that hawk," said Mr. Beckwith. "Yes, I see him," said Mr. Pitcher. They drove on, and the hawk didn't move. They drew nearer and nearer and finally were almost up to the bird. Mr. Beckwith took up his whip and as they reached the hawk made a crack at it. The blow struck just right, and the hawk was struck full in the neck. The crack was so well made that the full force was executed and the head was cut clean off. The gentlemen brought the hawk and its head to town with them.—Americus (Ga.) Times-Recorder.

The Summer Young Man.

Primarily speaking, the summer man is not a fool by any means. He is boiling over with business, but was never known to have done a day's work in his life. Fortunately he has inherited considerable money and is there to add an additional sum to that already on hand by marrying one of those western young women with pretty face, musical laugh and a rich father. This kind of men generally become very corpulent as age increases, and as good natured as well, and why shouldn't they?—Exchange.

Took Big Chances for Twenty-five Dollars.

A Captain Blondell at Oxford, Ala., offered twenty-five dollars to any one who would get into a boat and allow it to be blown up with dynamite so that Blondell might show his lifesaving methods. A young man named Neely accepted the offer and was blown about forty feet into the air unhurt, but on his return to the water's surface he alighted on the fragments of the wreck and received a fractured leg and other injuries.

Lighting the Bartholdi Statue.

It was always intended that the statue of Liberty in New York harbor should serve more than a sentimental purpose, and while being a beacon of liberty also be a lighthouse of value to mariners. For such a useful purpose, however, the statue has been a failure. Some time ago Major Heap, of the engineer corps of the army, was asked to design a method by which the statue could be properly lighted, and therefore serve the utilitarian purpose as well as the sentimental. Major Heap has just reported to the lighthouse board, and proposed that the present lights of about 2,000-candle power be so treated that a belt of flame shall be seen instead of the small portion, as at present.

"The effect I desire to produce," says Major Heap, "is a powerful white light in the focal plane, and a beam of colored light seen by reflection from the haze or dust in the air, so that the general appearance shall be somewhat like a flame." In the head of the statue, over the forehead, is a coronet consisting of twenty-five windows. In front of each window Major Heap proposes to place two 100-candle power incandescent lamps, protected from the weather in glazed lanterns, the backs of which shall be reflectors.

At present the statue, owing to its dark color, is invisible at night, as the reflected light from the lamps in the sallents of the fort is too feeble to be seen at any distance. To partially overcome this Major Heap proposes to place an arc light of 2,000-candle power under the balcony of the torch, with a reflector throwing the light directly on the head. This beam of light will be so powerful and will be so near the head that the latter will probably be visible to vessels passing close to the statue.

Islands Sold to a Syndicate.

The Isles of Shoals, eight miles off Portsmouth, N. H., have been sold to a Boston syndicate. The price, which is $550,000 for islands and the hotel buildings, has been guaranteed, and the transfer will be immediately made in order that contemplated improvements may be completed for next season's business. C. G. Wainwright, banker, of Boston, has managed the deal, which will result, as soon as necessary preliminaries are perfected, in the transfer of the entire interest of the Messrs. Leighton. The purchase takes in every one of this group of islands—viz., Appledore, Smutty Nose, Cedar, Duck and Malaga within the Maine boundary, and Star, White, Londoner's and Seavey's in the New Hampshire division. The sale is without reservation.

One of the new features for both Appledore and Star islands is to be the introduction of electricity as a potent factor, and an electric railway is to encircle both isles. Appledore is 3¼ miles around, and the railway around this island will connect with one around both Star and Smutty Nose, distance 3½ miles, making the total distance seven miles. The motive power plant is to be on Appledore and through cables. By this plant both the isles are to be finely lighted.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

The Glory of Nancy Hanks.

An evening contemporary finds "relief to the vulgarity of the announcement that Nancy Hanks has out trotted all the trotters of the land" in the fact that the mare "is owned now by a Boston man who is not responsible for her name." It is hard to see where "vulgarity" enters into the announcement of the great achievement of the mare. The original Nancy Hanks was a brave and good woman, and the mother of a president. Her memory is revived by the speed of a good and brave mare. A good woman is the noblest of all creatures, and next to her, in the estimation of thousands, is a good horse.

If the namesake of the western woman were condemned to the dreary circle of a brickyard or controlled in her motions by the bell of a horse car, then would there be the vulgarity that approaches ignominy, but to be thus honored in the history of trotting is a glory that is not enhanced even by Boston ownership.—Boston Journal.

No Perfect Figures in Chicago.

It is reported that one of the artists on the exhibition buildings is in a quandary. He wishes to paint the figure of a (physically) perfect human being on one of the ceilings and cannot find a model. But why should he want one? He will not discover perfection in humanity, and if he has in his mind's eye the ideal of the perfection he wishes to represent he ought to be able to delineate it "al fresco." That is what the artists of the world and their admirers have called "creation," to distinguish it from the more servile work of merely copying what is set before them. This particular artist may be justified by the code of the profession, and yet it may be regarded as a pity that he cannot rise above the recognized necessity and dispense with the menial pose.

A Much Traveled Valise.

A valise was received at the United States express office at Jackson, Miss., several days ago showing from the hundreds of stamps and tags on it that it had been in most of the express offices in the country. It was stuffed full of hundreds of odd and queer articles, including a human skull and the left foot of a female graveyard rabbit.

A Marvelous Escape.

Several gentlemen were sitting around the hotel fire telling stories of hairbreadth escapes, some of which partook of the marvelous, and after hearing them all take a turn the quiet man spoke as follows:

"Once, in the early seventies, I was hauling a load of freight to San Angelo, Tex., and I remember that I stopped one evening to camp in a deep ravine, just after I had crossed the Colorado river.

"I was driving a 'trail wagon' and was using eight mules, and just as I had unhitched my team I heard a roaring noise, and looking up I saw a 'waterspout' coming down the ravine and about the time I looked it broke, filling the ravine with a raging torrent, about ten feet deep, which came rushing toward me in a solid wall of angry, 'brick colored' water. I hurried to hitch up my team, and succeeded in doing so, and in fact got them turned around and started down the ravine at a sweeping gallop, and might have outrun the 'waterspout,' but the front axle of my forward wagon broke, and while I was trying to cut the horses loose the flood overtook me.

"I expected to be drowned of course, but, strange to say, as the water struck my hindermost wagon it subsided as if by magic.

"I thought at first that I had been saved by direct providential interposition, but such was not the case, gentlemen. I was hauling out supplies for a new insurance agency at Angelo, and my hindermost wagon was loaded with blotting paper."—Detroit Free Press.

The Teacher—There is one of my brightest boys sitting over there on that rock writing, while his companions are wasting their time in idle play. No doubt he is writing his lessons out for tomorrow. Here, Jimmy, let me see what you are writing.

A DAYBREAK SONG.

Daybreak! daybreak! Bright grows the east as last!
Bells ring—birds sing—sun is the dew drop glistening!
Leaves stirring, trees shaking, soft sounds from field and wood—
Look up, my weary heart! morn's here, and God is good!

New skies and blue skies—cheer heart! another day
Lights on the changing world; up! strive! whilst strive thou may.
What though the past went wrong? What though the n'ght were long?
Wake, wake, my weary heart! new be thy hope and song.

Daybreak! daybreak! Thank God for veiling night,
Sleep's sweet forgetfulness, setting the sad world right.
Thank God for birds and bells: "Cheer! cheer!" they seem to say;
"All that is past, is past; life is new born each day."

Sparkle of beamy dew, deep skies so clear and blue,
God smiling on the world, light me to labor true!
Help me to strive with zeal—strive, though my starts slown—
Sure that while mornings rise, some day my task shall crown.
