THE ELDER SALVINI SURPRISED.

When the Temple of Diana Fell, He Became Very Much Excited.

Alexander Salvini tells an amusing story of his experience while acting as stage director for his father when the latter began his last American tour.

"I took entire charge of the stage direction for father," said he in a chat the other day, "and so relieved him of all anxiety on that score. I had the most difficulty in getting proper handling of the temple scene in 'Bianca,' where Samson pulls the shrine of Diana down upon the heads of the people. I superintended this and got everything into working shape, but did not have father rehearse the falling in of the temple.

"I knew that the mechanical effect would take care of itself, so far as he was concerned, and merely placed a dummy there so as to arrange things in the debris should fall so as to hit Samson. The effect of this tumbling in of the scenery was rather terrifying. It was the 'supers' whom I expected to give me the most trouble. Of course I wished them, representing the worshippers in the temple, to make a regular stampede, but I did not rehearse them for it.

"Well, when we played 'Samson' the first night I secured just the result I wanted. You ought to have seen those supers run off the stage! They thought the whole house was tumbling in on them. The way they went off that stage was a caution. At least they tried to go, but in their terror they tumbled all over one another in a heap. It produced a magnificent terror effect, and the audience probably thought it had all been rehearsed to perfection. But the supers knew better.

"How did they act the next night?" "They didn't act at all. They were so terrified that they never came back. I expected that and had a new lot ready. The most astounded man of all was probably father. When the whole temple tumbled down upon him, he was perfectly bewildered, and as soon as the curtain was down he turned to me and energetically exclaimed, 'Sacramento! but do you want to kill me!' When cautious investigation showed him that no piece of scenery could fall on him, he accepted the situation philosophically." - Minneapolis Tribune.

THE FLYING YEARS.

As a dream when night is done.

As a shadow flees the sun.

As a ship whose white sails skim

Over the horizon of life that rise

As a life complete of days

Vanished from mortal wars,

As a hope that pales to fear-

Is the flying year.

As the first gold shaft of light

Shivers through the wreck of night,

As the thrill and stir that bring

Promise of the budding spring,

As new thoughts of life that rise

Mirrored in a sick man's eyes,

As strange joy to hearts forlorn-

Is the flying year.

Old and sad, a dwelling span

Is the little life of man,

Love and hope and work and tears

Fly before the flying years.

Yet all remembrance leaves grow bold-

All the story is not told-

For around us as a sea

Spreads our great eternity.

-Christian Burke.

A Honey-moon Incident.

A well known local carpenter tells a story that is intended as a good joke on his wife. When they were married they rented apartments in a block, the rear of which overlooked one of the rivers, and among the wife's earliest culinary efforts was a batch of bread. The young husband sampled his wife's contribution to the world's stock of the "staff of life," and arising from the table playfully remarked:

"My dear, cast your bread upon the waters."

The wife took offense at the injunction, and as her husband left the house she flung the remaining loaf out of the window into the river. It struck a passing boat, crashing through the bottom and sinking in the water's murky depths. The next she knew the boatman, dripping wet, made a tour of the block, bent on discovering who dumped the hod of bread into his craft.-Binghamton Leader.
