WE are but just beginning to see the many advantages which a railroad to Salem will be to us. The bugaboo "loss of trade" is fast disappearing, and in its stead come dreams of our being a little city of some pretensions, for we have a favorable location and good country surrounding, and as it is developed we must grow in population. One of the most important matters to decide is a choice of the route for the railroad. There are advantages to be gained on both sides of the river. Our people here are very generally in favor of going down on this side of the Willamette, but perhaps when they give the matter more thought they may change their minds particularly if the person through whose land it passes show no desire to help the enterprise along. There is no doubt but that if those persons owning land along the route from here to Salem are alive to their interests they will be liberal in dealing with those engineering this road, but if they are not, then there can be no fault found if the road should go down on the Marion county side. It all depends upon the land owners on this side of the Willamette river.

ONLY a little over a hundred years ago our forefathers, sick of royalty, came to the then New World, to find a land where aristocracy was unknown. Our constitution forbids the granting of any title to any subject of the United States. During the past two weeks Washington and New York have been given up to entertaining a Spanish prince and princess; and while it is entirely proper to show them due respect and courtesy the pecedent of our government paying the bills for entertainment is a bad one. Thousands of dollars have been spent and secretary Walter Q. Gresham will present the bills for payment. Matters are getting decidedly rotten in America.

The trial of Dr. Briggs, the dissenting Presbyterian divine, is being carried on in Washington D. C. and the public is becoming weary of the matter The result can be easily foretold. An other church will be formed with Dr. Briggs as its organizer. Why is it that a Catholic is always a Catholic, a Jew always a Jew, and Mohammedan always the same, but Protestants are divided among themselves into hundreds of sects? A union of all of the churches into one church universal seems farther off than ever.

Later—Dr. Briggs is convicted of heresy.

ON account of the departure of Lee Bell, for California, a vacancy occurs in the city council of Independence, and some good man should be chosen to fill the vacancy. The matter should be canvassed among our citizens, and a candidate presented to the council who will look after the best interests of the town, and administer its affairs economically and wisely. There is plenty of material from which to select.

KANSAS CITY imposes a tax of $2.50 on all citizens, which is remitted if he votes. No attention has been paid to the law. and the tax has reached $100,000 on the books and is unpaid. A case to test the law was taken to the courts as to its constitutionally. The courts have decided that it is valid and that the tax must be paid by all who have not voted, with interest and costs.

THE Oregon Press Association prepared a book composed of one copy of each of the publications in the state, and asked to have it placed among the Oregon exhibits at the World's fair, but the commission declined to accept the same. Evidently those gentlemen are not very proud of the Oregon journalistic product.—Dispatch.

A WORD TO BREEDERS.

Prices of late for small and medium-sized horses are so low that there is no paying market for them. This is, in a measure, on account of the introduction of electricity and cable lines for city street cars in place of horses, but there is an active demand for good large draught horses in all cities, therefore we cannot afford to breed to grades or mongrels with expectation of getting horses that are saleable. In this progressive age we must either breed to some of the improved draught breeds, or the Thoroughbred or Standard bred horse. But with the Thoroughbreds and trotters, they must be developed before they are saleable as race horses or drivers, but the draught colt, after two years of age, will pay its keeping on the farm until it is marketable at prices that will pay well for the cost of production.
