I SHALL REMEMBER.

In the dim meadows flecked with asphodel
I shall remember!
I shall not forget
The waters of the immortal well
That darkly laugh, throwing oblique gleam
The cup of memory I shall bear, shall drain
Again—again—again—
Down to the dross!
I shall remember.

I shall not drink the waters of that well.
I shall remember!
For from all mirth
I will make glad, make mad, the souls that dwell.

In pale contented slumber, for I will tell
It is the earth, once there, they blindly seek
In search too weak, too weak—
It is the earth!
I shall remember.

In the dim meadows flecked with asphodel
I shall remember!
Faintest it flows.
All sweetest blossoms with earth and change
do dwell.

And in their glowing single a farewell—
More dear because they drop, they fade,
they pass.
The rose of life, about
The rose, the rose
I shall remember.

I shall not drink the waters of that well.
I shall remember.
And witness yet—
"Ye shadowy dancers of the twilight dell,
And ye whose shadowy arms do but compel
A shadowy foe—this is not mirth, not strife!
This is not life, not life!
Do ye forget?"
I shall remember. —New York Tribune.

The Cobweb Party.

Prizes in a cobweb party are not given as in progressive euchre to the best players and the poorest (booby prizes these last receive), but are found at the ends of the long and winding about strings that are carried "up stairs and down stairs and in my lady's chamber." Whatever prize you find at the end of the clew you follow to its hiding place is yours. There are any quantity of inexpensive or expensive trifles that you can select to put at the end of the cobweb trail. The cobweb itself is the starting point of these clews of string and is generally placed in the entrance hall. It is made of various colored twine balls, such as you can purchase for 5 cents a ball in the stationers' shops.

The cobweb is simply a twisted center of these strings, more or less realistic, and the strings themselves recross and wind about over each other's track, making it quite a puzzle to keep the direction of the single thread each one chooses on beginning the game to follow. Of course you have different colors, and even different kinds of string, including red and white tape, because no two should be alike, or else two that are alike should not cross in any way or come together.—Exchange.

Beginning the Day Aright.

You remember perhaps the story of a Greek philosopher who had his boy every morning awakened from sleep by soft, sweet music. His purpose was that the boy might begin each day with thoughts of beauty and goodness. The idea was admirable. It is a glorious power we have to set the thoughts and feelings of our children for the days. It is so easy to make a bad start, and so hard to get reset before we have lost the beauty of three or four hours. It is no light thing to have lived a half day meanly. Then we have to take account of the fact that a great many influences are capable of setting the day badly. The weather affects our boys and girls as it does us, and they are not experienced in a way to give them power by reason to rise over antagonism.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

An Unnecessary College.

Washington society last winter knew a very self sufficient bachelor, who was a congressman. In certain lines he was smart enough, but generally speaking he needed about twice as much sense as he usually displayed. One evening he was talking to a sharp girl.

"I tell you what it is," he said, "I shall introduce a bill for the coinage of half cents."

"Why are you going to do it?" she asked innocently. "That's what you have already."—Detroit Free Press.

White Seal Engravings.

The Columbian stamps are really steel engravings and form the third special issue of stamps in the country. The first of these was a 15-cent stamp representing the landing of Columbus, which was issued in 1893, and a second commemorated the centenary of his voyage, issued in 1892, by a souvenir envelope. The third shaped 3-cent stamp representing the landing of Columbus, which was issued at the top the 11th and at the bottom 1876.

How We Grow Old.

The thread that binds us to life is most frequently severed ere the meridian of life is reached in the case of persons who neglect obvious means to renew failing strength. Vigor, no less the source of happiness than the condition of long life can be created and perpetuated where it does not exist. Thousands who have experienced or are cognizant—including many physicians of eminence—of the effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, bear testimony to its wondrous efficacy as a creator of strength in feeble constitutions, and debilitated and shattered systems. A steady performance of the bodily functions, renewed appetite, fresh and nightly repose attend the use of this thorough and standard renovant. Use no local tonic represented to be akin to or resemble it in effects in its place. Demand the genuine, which is an acknowledged remedy for indigestion, malaria, nervousness, constipation, liver and kidney complaints and rheumatism.
