A NOBEGAY FOR A FAYRE MAYDE.

Shall I wish a lightness heart care free, Dearest mayde, for thee? Ah, not not not! Better that thou have a trusting heart, In thy care depart, Thus lasting well!

Shall I wish for thee a garden fayre, Full of roses sure? Ah, not not not! Better oftentimes have thorns concealed, Than that thy fragrance yield— Ye, cause they weal!

I will only wish one garden plot, Maiden, for thy lot, So low! so low! Violets, within the pleasant shade By their own leaves made, Therein shall grow.

So the pensive shall fragrance win From the flowers within, So low! so low! Though the daisy blossoms be not in sight, Fresh as true delight Shall be know.

Could I say ever more money offer Fairer could I proffer? Ah, not not not! What can sweeter be than heartness rare? What can be more fair Than virtue's Of—Edwin Percy in Good Housekeeping.

A Gentle Hint.

The attorney had made a motion for a new trial in a civil action, and the judge looked it over carefully. "Um," he said thoughtfully, "um. This sets forth that the verdict was unsupported by the evidence, was contrary to the evidence, was against the weight of the evidence, and that the evidence was insufficient to support the verdict as to any or all of the issues, because of errors of the justice in admitting and excluding evidence, errors of law in the instructions to the jury, improper conduct on the part of counsel for the caveator in addressing the jury and in bills of exceptions."

"Yes, your honor," replied the attorney. "And do you believe it?" "Certainly I do." "Well, well," and the judge grew sympathetic, "it's a pity that the judge and attorneys and officials and jury and witnesses in that court don't know as much as you do. It really is, because if they did it would save me a great deal of worry and bother. Wouldn't you like to have a job as court instructor or something of that sort?"—Detroit Free Press.

An Impediment to Dancing.

Among a number of young men who were recently visiting the city was one who has a lively sense of humor and an impediment in his speech. A german was given in their honor, and the hostess observed that this particular young man did not dance.

"I am surprised not to see you dancing," she said. "Don't you care for it?"

"Oh, y-yes," he replied. "Then why haven't you gotten a partner and joined in the amusement?"

"W-w-well," he explained, "it's th-this way. I h-h-have tried several t-t-times. B-b-but b-by the t-time I have s-s-succeeded in t-t-telling a g-g-girl wh-what I w-w-want, th-the music's s-s-s-stopped."—Washington Star.

Robbing the Pawnbroker.

A man has been found who is able to get the best of pawnbrokers. He is a smooth individual, flashing diamonds and fine clothes. He enters a shop and offers to pawn a watch worth about $200. He agrees to let it go up for $50, and the pawnbroker is glad to get it at the price. While the proprietor of the shop is getting the money, the man cleverly substitutes another watch exactly similar in appearance to the first one, but with a possible market value of $2. He gets the money and vanishes. One pawnbroker thus far has reported the game to the police. It is not known how many have been touched up in this way, but it is thought that there are a number of them.—Minneapolis Tribune.

A New Idea.

Publisher—You are Mr. Edison! Edison—Yes, sir. Publisher—Mr. Edison, I'll give you $1,000 and royalties if you will invent 1,000 new excuses for dimes which don't pay tollers' bills. The publisher says at his own expense, and we'll make a fortune.—Harper's Bazar.

The Latest Excuse.

Excuse—Why is it that so many men turn their trousers up behind?

For the same reason—Yogas.

The Fountain Head of Strength When we recollect that the stomach is the grand laboratory in which food is transformed into the secretions which furnish vigor to the system after entering and enriching the blood, that it is, in short, the fountain head of strength, it is essential to keep this important supplying machine in order, and to restore it to activity when it becomes inactive. This, Hostetier's Stomach Bitters does most effectually, reasonably, regulating and reinforcing digestion, promoting due action of the liver and bowels. Strength and quietude of the nerves depend in great measure upon thorough digestion. There is no nervous tonic more highly esteemed by the medical fraternity than the Bitters. Physicians also strongly commend it for chills and fever, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, sick headache, and want of appetite and sleep. Take a wineglassful three times a day.

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 23, 1891. Mr. Pitham, Pittsburg, Penn.

Dear Sir—I want to ask a great favor of you. I want you to please send a boy down to the hotel drug store next to the Cafe and have them send half a dozen boxes of Krause's Headache Capsules. I bought some while I was in Pittsburg and found it wonderfully effectual. I do not know how much they will cost, so would ask to have them sent C. O. D., care of the Colonade hotel, Philadelphia. Hoping that I will have an early opportunity to return the favor, I remain,

Very truly, BAILEY AVERY, "McCaull." For sale by Shelley, Alexander & Co.
