Last Friday morning John Young discovered a brick fire burning in the straw in G. W. Reed's barn which was under good headway but was extinguished without much damage.
There are two ways of doing things, when you go into a newspaper office. One way is to turn all the exchanges inside out and leave them spread all over the table, looking like a cyclone had been around; another, and a better way is to pick up the papers and after you have looked over them, as the editor is always willing to have you do, fold them again and return to the table.

The Vanduyen corner, as in the past, takes the lead as the resort of those desirous of good bargains. New supplies of the best goods obtainable are kept constantly on hand, and the bargains offered will compare favorably with any mercantile establishment of the coast. Don't forget the Vanduyen corner.
Prof. C. A. Hitchcock of the Independence public school, contemplates a visit to Ohio in June, to return again in the fall. Whilst in Ohio he will attend the Christy school of Methods. He has just received a life diploma from the state of Oregon. Prof. Hitchcock has made a good and efficient teacher, and our school has progressed well under his charge.
Last week's WEST SIDE in speaking of the band which accompanied the Altona's excursion Sunday May 6th, stated that but part of the Monmouth band furnished music. We here make a correction and note that the full Monmouth Cadet Band with eighteen instruments accompanied the excursionists and discoursed music seldom equaled and never excelled.

D. L. Keyt, candidate for the legislature on the republican ticket, made a call at the West Side office this week. We were much pleased to have a chat with him concerning the political outlook. Mr. Keyt is a man of more than ordinary intelligence, is a true blue republican, his interests are fully identified with those of the county and state, and when elected will perform the duties incumbent upon him with fidelity and promptitude.

go rapidly in order to meet the deficiencies of the treasury. There is something magnificent, no one can deny, in the results of democratic policy.
Yet, great as are the losses to the government through this policy, the losses to industry and general business have been so enormous, greater than that any attempt at comparison would be useless. When one thinks of the difference between the total of wages for 1892 and 1894, of the difference of general values and of the results of business the loss of the government's revenues is but a paltry thing. The shrinkage of property and the losses of the people may equal one-quarter to one-third of the whole former values of the country; possibly much more—for no one can tell what the finally will be.
It is a fashion to say that the business of all other countries is disturbed and depressed as much as our own. But there is evidence that this is not true. The falling off in our revenues and the stagnation and decline of industry with us have no parallel in other leading countries. The total revenue for the United States for ten months have fallen to $245,209,709, in comparison with $321,961,278, one year ago. This is a decline of $76,751,569. The British exhibit for the same period shows a gain of $3,988,116. Take now the statistics of trade. In the nine months of the current fiscal year our imports of foreign merchandise dropped to $490,200,870, a decrease of $154,470,678 from the figures of the previous year. In Great Britain, on the other hand, the imports of foreign merchandise during the same period rose to $1,578,694,990, an increase of $35,464,490. In France, likewise, there has been during the past three months an increase of $63,906,000 in the imports of foreign merchandise.

The contrast of these figures proves that there can be no depression of business in other countries comparable with that which exists in the United States. Hence the excuse that "the business of all the countries in the world is disturbed and depressed," put forth as an apology for the severity of "democratic times" in the United States, is invalid and untrue. The simple fact is that the policy of the democracy is not the policy for the country—Oregonian.

While Mr. T. J. Richey, of Altona, Mo., was traveling in Kansas he was taken violently ill with cholera morbus. He called at a drug store to get some medicine and the druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy so highly he concluded to try it. The result was immediate relief and a few doses cured him completely. It is made for bowel complaint and nothing else. It never fails. For sale by all dealers.

Hard Facts Now.
Thus far within the present fiscal year (ten months) the revenues of the general government have fallen below its expenses by the great sum of $65,400,000. By the close of the year (June 30), the deficit, it is believed, will exceed $80,000,000. This phenomenal proof of the success of "the change" is accomplished by a semi-official intimation that it may and probably will become necessary to sell more bonds to replenish the gold in the treasury, which has been diminished recently by nearly $14,000,000, and is now only a little in excess of $20,000,000, and evidently must continue to

Of all the remedies that have ever come under our notice, claiming to cure headache from whatever cause, we take pleasure in saying that we know of none that in our estimation is as beneficial for the quick and permanent cure of the above complaint as Krause's Headache Capsules which are manufactured by the well-known family chemist, Norman Liberty, of Des Moines, Iowa. Drowned in Iowa.
The Muscatine Daily Tribune, of Iowa, gives notice of the death of Barrett Denham, who was drowned while boating, in a squall. The deceased was in the employ of our townsman, L. C. Gilmore for some years before his departure for Iowa and was well known in Independence, for his amiable disposition, his industrious habits, and his strict observance of the rules of morality. Young Denham was about twenty five years old, was a member of the K. of P., which order buried him, and his untimely death will be regretted by all but by none more sincerely than by L. C. Gilmore, who always entertained a sincere regard for him growing out of their most intimate association in past years together.

A MEMORABLE EVENT.
ROSWELL G. HERR speaks to the PEOPLE OF INDEPENDENCE.

(Grand Torch Light Procession—Four Bands and 2000 People Celebrate the Occasion.)
On the 15th day of May, 1894, the Hon. Roswell G. Herr, the world-renowned orator, arrived in Independence about 4 o'clock p. m., and was escorted to the Little Palace hotel, where he took a rest preparatory to the evening's exercises.

At half past seven the procession was formed on the corner of the Little Palace hotel, Lyman Damon acting as marshal. The procession was marched to the depot to receive the delegation from Monmouth, consisting of about 300 of her citizens. The procession then moved on to the hotel, and from there paraded the different streets of the city with flaming torches, banners or transparencies, finally ending their march at the steps of the opera house, on Main street. We give some of the mottoes or sentiments displayed and expressed on the banners. One gave the unanimous sentiment of the republicans of this section, and was thus expressed:

"Vote the republican ticket and put the Oregon mills and manufactories in motion again."
Another gave expression to the inquiry, "What's the matter with Tommy Reed's rule? The're all right. So says a democratic congress."
Another presented the following advice to voters: "Vote down populism, the sideshow of the democratic circus."
Another gave expression to the thought, "Let Pennoyer and Cleveland fight, but not at the expense of Oregon."

Other banners of like character were displayed, but space forbids their presentation in our columns.
The Monmouth band, the Dixie band, and the two bands of Independence, enlivened our people with strains of music suitable to such occasions.
One of the most conspicuous features in the procession was the float bearing Queen "Lill" sitting upon the lap of Cleveland, which excited the resiliencies of the immense crowd and was hailed with shouts and laughter that made the walk in ring. Queen Lill was floated to the corner of 6th and C streets, where she alighted and was left to her own reflections.

The procession now broke rank, Hon. Roswell G. Herr was escorted to the opera house, took the platform, and was introduced to that vast multitude there gathered together, by W. R. O'Donnell, after which, one grand round of applause burst forth which seemed to make the building shake to its very foundation. Upon the stage were seated about 30 of our noted citizens, ladies and gentlemen, and the bands also occupied a prominent position on the same platform. Before the distinguished speaker commenced his address the Dallas quartette composed of B. F. Mulkey, John Cosper, Mark Ellis and George Snyder, delighted the audience with some selections of vocal music that is seldom equaled and never excelled.

The noted speaker then began his speech, and for one hour and three quarters addressed the people upon our individual and national welfare. He presented the principles of the republican party in their true light, and in such glowing terms, that it seemed impossible for the unprejudiced mind to fail to realize the truth of the argument and principles presented. The populist, as a party, received no mercy at his hands. He showed the inconsistency and impracticability of the issuance of fiat money, and the impossibility of the stamp of the government being impressed upon any material whatsoever, as being recognized as money, in the true sense of the term. He says, "As well might I stamp the name of Daniel Webster upon a man's back and call him Daniel Webster. Would that make him Webster? Equally absurd is the idea that the government, by putting its stamp upon a piece of paper, and irredeemably can pass current with ourselves or with other nations with whom we have commercial intercourse." Never was an audience, composed of such vast numbers, so well entertained and so entranced by oratory flowing from the mouth of a speaker as was done upon this occasion. Republicans were confirmed in the truth and force of their political opinions; populists squirmed as though an avalanche was about to drop upon them, and democrats, with listening ears and gaping mouths, appeared fearful that they were approaching the "last ditch."

The Monmouth, Dallas and Dixie clubs were guests of the occasion, and were cordially invited to take part and participate in whatever exercises might occur during the evening.
The 15th day of May, 1894, will not be forgotten, and the result of Mr. Herr's presence among us, and his presentation of republican principles will be shown at the June election, when a pronounced victory will be shown in favor of the republican ticket.

About 800 persons were seated in the hall and listened with wrapt attention to the distinguished speaker. It is estimated that at least 500 persons were turned away, not being able to gain admittance at the door.
