There was a sound of wheels ,and all semblance of slumber fled from Sarepta's eyes as there appeared at the front gate a very shiny top-buggy. And when in a few moments a slende shadow fell across the doorway, and Lois Merritt entered, no detail of her appearance was unobserved. The girl was tall, like her mother, with the same large, serious cast of counte-

"What awful little bunnits they be e-wearin'l" said Sarepta, as if obeying an irresistible inner prompting. Lois received placidly this implied criticism of her new summer millinery, and her mother thought complacently: "Lois don't mind S'repta. Emma and Lucia ain't so even-tempered. They'd have flared up."

It required but little urging to induce the visitor to stay until after tea. It had been one of the great treats of Sarepta's childhood to go home from school with Lucinda.

"I don't see. mother." said Emma Merritt, as with a sigh of relief she watched Sarepta's departing footsteps, "how you can like to have her here so much. It's just to see and hear, and then go and tell. And she doesn't miss anything that's going on, for all that she keeps her eyes

"There isn't any harm in S'repty, said Mrs.' Merritt. "I've always known her, and it kind o' interests her to come here."

"She takes too much interest in my affairs," persisted Emma. "And every where she goes she tells about 'Si,' and 'Em,' and 'Lucindy,' and so on, as if we belonged to her."

"Never mind, Emma Jane," replied "Never mind, Emma Jane," replied her mother, "I guess there's room enough in this world for you and S'repty, too.
