NINE STYLES IN 100 YEARS.

"Though the fashion in women's dress has changed a hundred times in a hundred years," said a young lady who observed, "it has been a change of detail rather than of style, while the changes of costume, that is, of dress which can be said to mark a historical epoch, there have been but two. 'Simplification in men's clothing there has been but one radical change of costume during the century—that from the breeches to the trousers, with the introduction of the pantaloons.

IN THE CORRIDORS OF THE CAPITOL.

A Great Change in the Appearance of the Interior of the Big Building — Bills Approved.

There was quite a change in the scene at the capitol yesterday over those of the past few days. Where but a few hours before appeared a bustling, bustling mass of business men, with enthusiasm over the election of a new United States senator all was quiet, there being only the janitors and sweepers with brooms and dustpans riddling the several rooms that had been occupied by the legislators during the closing moments of Oregon's eighteenth biennial legislature.

The corridors were almost deserted. Now and then a person would climb the stairs to take a glance at the interior of the big building, but there was no loitering in the rotunda as had been the case a short time previous.

Governor Lloyd's amendments were visited by several parties interested in the measure that had been submitted to him by the legislature, while others called to pass a few moments in the interests of their friends for certain gubernatorial appointments, presuming that during the early hours of the afternoon the governor was compelled to devote some attention to the many bills requiring his personal and disposition.

ARE FINDERS KEEPERS?

The Law as to Finders and Keepers Is Simple and Fair.

The finding of concealed wealth is now an event of rare occurrence, except in tales of romance and adventure. It was not uncommon once for when a citizen was comparatively poor, the rays of keeping valuables were imperfect, the earth was a favorite hiding-place for treasures, especially in times of war or invasion.

The title to such valuables is now discovered by the subject of digests. Money, gold, silver or plate found hidden in the earth or in a secret place is termed treasure-trove, from the French trouver, to find. Such treasure, according to the law of England, was the property of the king.

Lost articles of value found upon the surface of the earth or in the sea, so far as concerns everyone but the owner, the property of the one who finds them. If they are found taken from him by another the finder can reclaim them as if he were the owner.

A chimney sweeper's boy, more than a hundred years ago, has found a fortune as a result of unusual values. He took it to a goldsmith, who after looking at and weighing it, tried to buy it from the boy for a trifling sum. The lad refusing the offer, the goldsmith returned to him the setting, but would not give back the gem.

Upon the trial of an action brought by the boy against the goldsmith, the value of the jewel was conceded by the goldsmith, and he was directed to pay to the boy the price of the finest jewel which could be fitted in setting forever the right of a finder to the possession of his findings.

It is not necessary to make a claim, however, the article must have been truly lost. If it had been simply mislaid, or put in a particular place by the owner and afterward left there, the finder would not be entitled to it through his carelessness, it is not legal.

A lady who leaves her purse on the counter of a shop where she has been trading cannot be said to have lost it; and if the purse is afterward picked up by a stranger, he will not be entitled to it, but it will belong to the lady who left it.

Immense Amount Spent in New York

By Wives of American Millionaires.

Pin Money Spent in Sums to Make a Poor Man Stand Against especially in the "Hard Time" Season.

Some fabulous sums, under the fictitious title of pin money, are spent yearly by the wealthy women of the metropolis.

Pin money to most persons means some insignificant sum anywhere from a few dollars up to five hundred a year. The average young girl or blazon would consider herself richly blessed were she certain of $300 pin money per annum, and would willingly consent to furnish all her wants with it, wardrobe included. To the economically inclined woman $300 a year would seem quite a fabulous amount for clothes and the trifles of everyday life.

But pin money to the tune of sixty thousand a year—two hundred thousand a year, or two hundred thousand a week—barely supplies the needs of some of the fashionable women of New York. There are two scores of women in the metropolis who have that much, and a great deal more, to spend upon purely feminine wants, and they spend it so well that oftentimes they have something unpaid at the end of the year.

Others get rid of their money more satisfactorily. These are the women who accomplish good in a charitable way, spending liberally upon the poor of the tenements, and checking the sick in the hospitals with dainties which only a well-filled purse can procure.

Mrs. Theodora Haveneyer, wife of one of the sugar trust kings, possibly spends more money than any other woman in New York, although her husband is not as wealthy as a large number of other men. In addition to her own private life, she is very active in the most profitable work in town. Mrs. Haveneyer maintains it on a most elaborate scale.

Aside from these expenses, says an intimate friend of the lady, she has a large pride in her work, to the mutual advantage of both. Our most successful farmers financially today are the ones whose sons work at home. It is not to be wondered at that some of the best farmers in the state are to be found in the city.
