1000 ISLAND PARK, N.Y., JULY 7, '95. EDITOR WEST SIDE:-I am today among the beautiful Thousand Islands on the St Lawrence river. I stopped here to spend Sunday but finding I train on to the boat at Clayton, a small stopping at Round Island Park with its for building a wigwam are going ahead magnificiant hotel Frontenanc as a site has been selected on the corner next cottages. On our left is Little Round vitality against the unavoidable draughts it 60x100 with a seating capacity and Robbin's island and many others, for about 1500 people. One is owned by Chas. arpenter work will have to be paid Emery, of New York City, who has paid almost a million dollars for his house and Island. The lawns are like Airlie, and also the Southern Pacific a city home and the island is enclosed by a beautiful stone wall or fence.

I forgot to mention my trip on the back part of the store from a defective steamer to what is called Shooting the We take steamer at Morrisburg and soon the increasing speed of the steamer indicates that the most exciting portion of St Lawrence river is near at hand, he exciting and never-to-be-forgotten descent of the rapids has commenced The sensation while in these rapids reminds one of the ocean in a storm except he sudden going down hill in a steamboat is, to most people, a new experience, and the steep descent is realized f one has forgotten to take hold of some stationery portion of the steamer. The terrific roar and seething violence of the river are intensely fascinating Great nerve and power are required in piloting the steamer so as o keep her in the channel. Au Ind-an Pilot, called Baptiste, has made it his business for forty years to pilot the steamers down these rapids. And during all times he is exclusively in the service of these passenger steamershooting the rapids and under his skillful guidance the captain assureyou there is no danger. While desending these rapids a tiller is attached to the rudder as extra precaution and the force required to keep the steamer is so great that four men are kept constantly at the wheel and two at tiller After leaving these rapids we pass several Canadian towns, which are very pretty; very few people visit 1000 Islan is without taking this delightful trip. But if the day is stormy or a south wind prevails the tourist leaves the rapids behind them with a grateful sense of relief but after all the excitement becomes a pleasure. We next stop at the Grenell ery pretty place. Glancing along the narrow channel to our left is what is called the "Palisades" a huge granite precipice on the head of the Wellesley sland and through it a steamer plies very two hours to Grand View Palisades a beautiful place next to the Canadian channel. Our next stop was at Thousand Islands park. It was first settled by the Methodists for a camp-meeting ground several years ago but of late years other denominations have been coming in and now the grounds are broken up and a very seautiful hotel erected called the "Co umbian" surrounded by hundreds of very fine cottages. This hotel is on the east end of the Island and is very large and the most popular on the river being noted for its excellent service and nothing is left undone t entertain the guests as there are outside sports of all kinds and a very fine orchestra playing most of the time. drawing room and lobby being open every evening for dancing. The immense verandas are brilliantly lighted and extend all around the house which accomodates 400 people and is well filled for three months. Every day two very fine steamer make what is called the 50 mile ramble through the 1000 Islands viewing Can adian side as well as American side stopping at Alexandria Bay a very fashionable resort. We then head into the Minor Canadian channel where the islands are thicker than at any other point and can see hundreds of islands which lie along and across our winding course no two alike. It requires an experienced Pllot to steer through for in passing through so narrow a channel we can almost touch the rocks on either side. Suddenly another channel opened at our left be hind a rocky headland and we were again upon a broad expanse of water with hundreds of islands clustering about our boat. It takes three hours for this ramble and every one is sorry when it is ended. I wish I was able to describe th garndeur of these islands. As Washington Irving said: "New York state done, how rich it is in beauty of landscape, the mountains and glens of the Adirondacks bow grand, yet all these are surpassed by the indescribable beauty of the 1000 islands. They are the pearls in the crown of the Empire

I could write much more of these beautiful islands but not this time. The coming week I travel up in and around the Adirondack Mts. where I go down to Saratoga, another very noted Summer resort, as my business calls me very near there I will surely take the time to see all the beauties of the Empire State. But with all the fine scenery through the Adirondacks they do not compare with Oregon or Washington's fine mountainous scenreach Oregon about Dec. 24th.
