Attempt to Create a Doubt of the Tay lors' Gullt. Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 3.—A special to the Star from Carrollton, Mo., says:

Sheriff Stanley this morning received the following letter postmarked St. Joseph, and endorsed "In behalf of the Taylor boys."
"We, the undersigned, do solemnly swear the Taylor boys are not the murderers of the Meeks family, as the majority of the people think, but the men who committed the deed are Verney Taylor, Bill White, Enos Williams and Tom Williams. We heard the Taylors had given a thousand dollars to Meeks, and we took this method of getting the money. By throwing them in George Taylor's haystack all suspicion would be thrown on him, but we thought he would clear himself. We have been wanted for murders, robbery and a number of other crimes, but have never been caught. We are now on the road to Mexico and if you eatch us you may hang ais." AN IMPOSTER UNMASKED. A Pretended Catholic Bishop Turns Out a Swindler.

Portland, Aug. 3.-A man claiming to be Rt. Rev. Roperts, Roman Catholie bishop of Honolulu, who has been imposing upon the Catholic priests of Oregon and elsewhere, was discovered here today and made to leave the city. He is a man about 60 years of age and wore the royal purple and garb of a bishop. The stranger arrived in town Wednesday and called upon Father Orth, pastor of St. Lawrence church. Father Orth thought it strange he did not call upon Archbishop Gross, but the alleged priest explained that he understood the arch bishop's house was small and that friends had advised him to call on Father Orth. The explanation was satisfactory and "Rev. Roperts" was invited to say mass in several churches. He was familiar with all the different ceremonies of the church but when he called upon Archbishop Gross today, the latter suspected he was an imposter, who had been here about four years ago at the Magdalene Home. The Archbishop sent for Father Bolah, who recognized him and they immediately exposed him and he left town. It was his custom to deliver lectures and take up a collection and stop with priests though the country. He pocketed all the money.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.-There is another story about Durrant in circulation on the South Side that the police have not yet been able to trace. It is said that a year ago Durrant was very near to jail on a very serious charge. The alleged victim in this case was a young girl not yet 11 years old. She went to the church with the young man, according to report, and on her return home told such a story of what she suffered at his hands that the child's parents proposed having him arrested for felony. The horror of making the child's misfortune publie, and the fear that the stigma would remain with her through life was so great that in the end they determined to let the man go unpunished rather than to injure their daughter, as they thought the other course would do. Only a few people knew of it—the family physician and an intimate friend or two. When Durrant was arrested for Food largely determines the amount and quality of milk and batter. The profit is only derived from the excess over that necessary to sustain life. It is evident that a cow kept for milk cannot return her best profit if kept on half rations. The good milker must have a nataral disposition to convert her food into milk and then her ration must be a milk producing one-not one crowth nor to fatten, but one which will make her produce rich milk. Gentleness in a cow is worth money, and counts up in dollars every year. Irritable cows beget irritation in the nilker, and this always results in oss, either directly or indirectly. It nsures better care, for the gentle cow s always petted. This gentle disposiion is certainly a characteristic of the There seems to be an epidemic of

And Seems to Relish the Success of His Vengetul Ambitions-Plansible, but Wicked.

MISSOULA, Aug. 5.-Late tonight Symes, who was arrested today, admitted he was the man wanted for the murder of Constable Conlee near Ritzville, Wash., about one month ago. He is a tall, slender man about 26 years old, with short sandy beard. He was lying on his couch and was too weak to talk at great length. He does not deny killing Coulee, but says he did it in self-defense. His story is that he took up some stray hogs which came to his ranch in June. The owner claimed them, but he refused to surrender them un-til paid for the taking up. He states that a conspiracy was formed by Constable Conlee and several others with whom Symes had trouble at various times, to have him arrested for larceny. Conlee made the arrest and took a forty-four calibre gun from Symes but overlooked a thirty-eight, which was concealed in his shot pock-et. "Going down the road," said Symes, "Conlee abused me, called me hard names and said: "'Now, you, I've got you where I want you,' at the same time he stuck a gun in my face. I had a good horse and said pull if you want to; why don't you pull, causing my horse s still burning and presents a magnifi- to rear at the same time. He pulled and I kept pumping it into him till > his eyes fairly glimmering as he re lated how he had "pumped" lead into the constable. "I was to have been married that same week," he added in a regretful tone, "and had a license in my pocket when I killed him."

To do this he or-ders the Knights of Labor to refuse to accept national bank notes. The movement is based upon the theory that national banks derive a great revenue from issue of notes and if deprived of that revenue will go out of business, thus forcing the government to issue flat notes to take the place of the national bank currency. one who desires to know at what value a national bank holds its privilege of issuing notes has but to ask a national banker about it. The banker's reply will knock Sovereign's theory out in
