A NERVELESS COURT. The Omaha Decision a Compromise. It Does Not Mend Matters in Any Way.

But Leaves the Responsibility with the State Supreme Court—Only a Make-shift. OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 10.—The district court this afternoon rendered a decision in the police commission contest. The court holds that the old board is legally in possession and entitled to maintain its position and further legal proceedings may show it is not properly in power. The court, however, refuses to make a permanent injunction restraining the A. P. A. police commission from performing its functions. In fact the decision is a compromise.

It Does Not Mend Matters in Any Way. An important part of the decision is as follows: "In the light of the decisions, the defendants as are and police commissioners, under the law of 1895 and now in force, must be held to have an apparent right and to be entitled to an effective title to the office, and such being the case the court of equity will not restrain them from claiming such offices or from proceeding in a lawful manner to obtain peaceable possession of the same. Notwithstanding what was herein stated as to the rights of defendants to possession of the offices in question, yet the plaintiffs have a right to remain in peaceful possession of the same and to exercise the functions of said offices and to have their rights in proper legal proceedings. Require, the police commissioner, with return in power until the supreme court decides the question. Many members of the A. P. A. have asserted that they will not take possession through force, though no demand has as yet been made by the A. P. A. commissioners for the city properties on the old commission. A HAIRD TIMES WINDFALL. $50,000 Falls Into the Lap of a Unsuspecting Young Man. San Francisco, Aug. 10.—By the aid of the state labor bureau an heir to a $50,000 estate has been in possession of a relative had searched for and a relative had been in possession of a relative for six years. Yesterday a man entered the bureau and told a deputy that he was looking for his brother, W. H. White, who had left his home in Indiana in 1888. He gave his own as John White. He said that his anxiety to find his brother was due to the fact that an estate of $150,000 was waiting to be distributed. His brother's share was $50,000, and would be lost to him if he was not found within two months. He said that W. H. White was a teamster, and might have sought employment. A search was made through the files of the bureau, but nothing was discovered. Finally the laborer's applications were gone through, and when about two-thirds had been examined, a man named White, and that the man had been employed on an irrigation ditch in San Joaquin county at $1 a day and board, and when work was stopped by Judge Ross' decision, White then drifted back to the city a week ago.

WHEELS IN HIS HEAD. A Michigan Lunatic Thinks He is a Train of Cars. Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 10.—There is in the county jail awaiting a vacancy in the Pontiac lunatic asylum, a young man who imagines he is a train of cars. He was brought here from Milan, and gives his name as Walter Rogers. He says his home is in San Francisco, whence he made a remarkably fast run, often attaining a speed of 30 miles an hour. He speaks nearly all of his time listening to the noise attending the starting up and stopping of a railroad train. Every sound and movement he produces with startling fidelity to detail. When an officer found him he was on the railroad track and from his actions was getting up steam. Soon he said he was ready to start, ordered the fireman to fill the tank with water and the tender with coal, and starting every act perfectly. Then he pulled out the lever, and started the train running so fast that it was necessary to head him off with a horse. His whistle for "down brakes" can be heard a great distance. He is about 17 years old. It is believed the name and address given are both false and the officers are anxious to know from whence he came.
