IS WEALTH A BLESSING.

Many parents are making a serious mistake in acumulating wealth to give to their children. In the large majority of cases when children inherit property from the parents it becomes a bone of contention, disgracing playing to crowded houses on Puget the family name and estranging brothers and sisters, creating discord, envy, hatred and sometimes crime If this be not the result then in many cases these children inherit wealth and are spendthrifts or are dissipated and the money is soon gone. Many a sou has squandered in twelve month what it took the father a lifetime toll and sacrifice to accumulate.

These children looking forward to have failed to build a good character, to develop self dependence or to exercise judgment and good commo sense. They do not learn a trade or fit they are simply parasites on the family tree when the old stock dies they are paralized. Having come into a fortune they have no faculty or gumption to retain it, to say nothing of increasing it, "Come easy go easy," is the rule, alone. They drift into bad company become gamblers, drunkards, libertines and loafers. Without money or backgo to make up the great stream of criminals, dead beats and bunkos. pick hops and keep the money at John Wannamaker begun at the bottom; his son has just given a dinner in Paris costing $20,000, so the money goes. #### WITHOUT CREDIT.

We have been somewhat surprised WEST SIDE without credit. There is better than anticipated and at least only one paper in this vicinity that makes a business of "swiping" news without any credit and does it in a transparent manner and claims it as a their favor. One gentleman we know right and that is Publisher Wash, of of has gone to the expense of buying the Itemizer. Week before last an item about a story Hen. Simpson told the WEST SIDE man was pirated into the Itemizer and our contemporary republished it giving the Itemizer credit. Last week the Salem States mae republished our extracts from a letter written Hon. E. T. Hatch without credit and it was copied into the Dallas Observer giving the Statesman credit. These papers are not in the habit of taking credit for articles, however in giving credit to the wrong paper it was an oversight but it only shows that pirating an item does not do justice to the honesty of a publisher. In above examples if proper credit had been given the items would have been no less interesting. However if such practices are to be the rule in this county it can be used to advantage just as well in one instance as another. In order to illustrate we have clipped wholesale from our county papers and given no credit this week although we do not do so as a rule.

Independence has an enterprising class of business men and they are liberal patrons of everything which tends to advance the interests of the town. In this connection why would it not be a good idea to organize a board of trade or something of the kind for the purpose of talking over matters and getting the ideas of our people on questions of public interest. Right now if our people were to investigate the condition of the river here they would find that twenty men working for three days, in opening the gravel ber below town would he of great large and not to any individual We cannot afford if a little money, and ittle effort will accomplish results to have our town without river communieven three months in the year.

Three Pretty Girls.

The entertainment to be given at the pera house in Independence, September 3d, is given by the Webling Sisters of London, England. They are now ound. Here is what a Canadian paper

"The entertainment of the Webling Sisters, unlike those by many highly advertised novelties, fully deserved the enconiums of praise with which their coming was beraided, the pavillion last Thursday night being packed to the doors. The Misses Webling are three pretty, charming young ladies of wonderful talent in the line of highclass entertainment. The naive ways children looking forward to of petite Miss Lucy quite captivated the audience, while the stately Miss Peggy made an excellent interpreter of nasculine character, and the fair Miss

The skirt dancing by Misses Rosalind and Lucy was an entrancing treat to and the Highland sword dance by the same two respectively, dressed in national attire, in connection with the patriotic scene with which the entertainment closed. An air of refinement pervaded the whole proceedings and added greatly to their pleasureableness The ladies of St. James church, under and when it is gone, then they are whose auspices the entertainment was like an empty bag that cannot stand held, are to be congratulated upon their success. - Toronto Saturday
