Dallas Notes.

Wild strawberries came to market Saturday from the hills west of town. The cultivation of hops is progressing the vines are healthy and nearly all the yards are being cultivated. Flock men report the most prolific crop of lambs and kids for many years. Foxes have been a great nuisance around Dallas, killing many kids and lambs but have been run down and killed, the ning at large within the corporated limits of Dallas. The rain the past few days has been of great benefit to the farmers. It has been warm and seasonable. Grain is looking fire, especially the late-sown. Orchardists also say that the change in the conditions have been such that a large proportion of Italian prunes have recovered, and that many that seemed ready to drop off two weeks ago are not growing rapidly, with every prospect of a full crop.
