The sulphur spring situated across the river and about three miles from this city, could be made into a very profitable resort without very much difficulty. Cooper can tell you how the wheeling is done.

Independence is better cutting into Dallas and Salem territory on the wagon proposition. Mr. Goodman, manager for Wade & Co., on Tuesday sold a Dallas man a wagon and also one to a man who lives near Salem. And the beauty of it lies in the fact that the wagon went to regular prices.

There is a persistent rumor circulating that, as soon as the fall season sets in and present orders are filled, the wooden mills at Dallas will be dismantled and the machinery shipped elsewhere, probably to Portland. It is said that no arrangements have been made to keep up the wood supply and that the expense of shipping in raw material is too great to make the business profitable.

A party who saw these gentlemen at Willouit informs the West Side that Mr. Hirschberg was the most fidgety and uneasy man ever seen there, while Mr. Calbreath, who never drinks water at home, didn't seem able to get enough to drink there. They arrived at the springs on Friday about noon and Dave drank 25 glasses of the water before dinner. On the following day he got away with over a hundred glasses of the delicious beverage. This is considered pretty good for an invalid.

The "Great Australian Circus," says the Register, passed through Eugene yesterday morning on its way to Junction. The circus train was not imposing—some six or eight wagons—nor are its performances awe-inspiring, if the reports from Springfield, where it showed Wednesday night, are to be believed. It did manage to stir up some excitement there, however. In a fit of irritation one of the employes vigorously slapped the young son of Springfield's mayor. Fortunately for the circus people, the city marshal could not be found, so no arrests were made. The manager of the show, G. F. Mann, formerly ran a restaurant in the Young Block.

Prof. E. B. McElroy returned from his farm near Monroe last week. He reports his orchard and crops in fine condition. One field of 50 acres of winter wheat is estimated at from 25 to 30 bushels to the acre. This field is new ground and has been heavily pastured with goats and sheep for ten years. It is expected that most of this wheat will be sold for seed as there is an active demand already for good plump seed wheat.

James Yates threshed 90 acres of finely sown fallowed wheat Friday and Saturday. It turned out machine measure, 461 bushels. It ought to have yielded easily over 2000 bushels.

We understand that J. A. Stevens had his 100 acres of fall wheat threshed Friday and Saturday. It turned out machine measure, 461 bushels. It ought to have yielded easily over 2000 bushels.

It is the first time the field has yielded less than 25 bushels to the acre.—Eugene Guard.

A Pleasant Outing.

On Sunday a number of business men and their families crossed into Jefferson county enroute to the sulphur springs on the Dennis place, some three miles from this city.

The folks commenced to leave town by wagon and bicycle shortly after 8 o'clock, reaching the rendezvous in good season.

The road is in good condition, considering that Marion county doesn't spend much money on them. Those who went on bicycles rather enjoyed the trip.

Altogether, counting children, there were sixty-eight persons who enjoyed the outing at this delightful and cool spot. This includes eleven people from Salem.

The day was spent in lounging about under the cool trees, telling stories, singing, making speeches from genuine stumps and eating; principally the latter.

The crowd was cosmopolitan and congenial, everyone enjoying him or herself to the utmost. The people did not leave theirylvan retreat until evening, arriving home about 8 o'clock.

Among those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Al Herren, L. C. Gilmore, A. J. Goodman, J. S. Cooper, Ed Herren, W. H. Craven, J. E. Hubbard, E. Darnall, J. N. Jones, J. A. C. Brant, J. L. Herren, Sherman Hayes, George Kutch, Misses Lela Herren, Mabel Cooper, Pearl Cooper, Jessie Danon, Jessie Freeman, Grace Jones, Kate Jones, Maude Brant, Nellie Grant, Messrs. Carl Herren, Louis Brant, Roy Gilmore, Glenn Goodman, Sam Danon.

The following named Salem people participated: Mr. and Mrs. Perry Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. David Wagner, Mrs. Beverly Crawford, Mrs. Ida H. Vaughn, Misses Myra and Ethel Raymond, Miss Ethel Hughes, Al Moore and his wagon.

A Golden Wedding Celebrated.

The golden wedding of Christopher C. Patrick and Harriet Ann Savage was celebrated at their residence in Spring Valley, near Zena, this county, last Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

The most pleasant gatherings in the memory of the numerous friends fortunate enough to participate.

The guests were a large number of New York, born July 28, 1828. He removed to Michigan in 1849. Mrs. Patrick was born in Ohio November 27, 1831, coming to Michigan when six years of age.

They both descended from Scotch-Irish parentage, which has contributed so large a share to the social fabric during the formative stages of the national life of the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick were married in Michigan where they made their home until coming to Oregon in 1881.

Of the large family of fourteen children, six are still living. Mrs. Laura Griswold, of Salem, Mrs. Kate Coyle, Mrs. Edith Bixby, William, Albert M. and Mrs. Hattie Gibson. All were present at the golden wedding except Mrs. Bixby. Of the twenty-five grandchildren, fourteen were present, among them Misses Nora, Neva and Maed Griswold, of Salem, and Miss Jennie Coyle. There are seven great-grandchildren.

The golden wedding celebration indeed a happy occasion. An arbor of fir boughs shaded the dinner table from the too direct rays of the noonday sun. The banquet was beautifully provided by Mrs. Patrick and her assistants. The children and partaken of with zest and heartiness by more than sixty guests.

A Bear Story.

During his recent peregrinations in Crook county, Al Herren heard and saw many queer things. Among other things he heard was a bear story which was told on one Gleason, who is a camp tender for some sheep company in that wild and woolly country, where bear and deer are as thick as cattle on a prosperous Oregon farmer's land.

It seems that Gleason was out hunting one day and unexpectedly came upon a great big bear. The bear hadn't seen him yet, so Gleason withdrew to consider the advisability of starting the battle. The first thing he did was to look around to see if there was a convenient tree in sight up which he might retreat in case his first fire didn't kill the bear.

He found a tree all right, but to make matters sure he thought he would better climb the tree first to test his ability in that respect. He got up all right and then came down to tackle the bear.

The bear was just where Gleason had seen him in the first place, but he looked so big to Gleason that the latter was a little dubious about opening the fight, so he thought over the matter for awhile and rather doubted his ability to get up the tree in a hurry, and to make assurance doubly sure, he goes to the tree a second time and shins up it.

Feeling brave and confident of his success at the outcome he drops down and advances to the attack, but the bear had disappeared and Gleason is the butt of numerous jokes.

A New Railroad.

Projects are good for the establishment of another railroad running into Independence.

Last week some gentlemen from Falls City were here to see what the prospects might be for extending the line from Falls City to this point.

They were entertained by our Board of Trade and arrangements made for a committee from the board to go to Falls City and look over the field.

The committee, consisting of F. A. Douty and J. A. Mills, accompanied by H. Hirschberg, went to Falls City on Wednesday. They looked over the ground and found a practical route for a road, the distance to be built over not exceeding nine miles.

To further satisfy himself and make an estimate of the cost, Mr. Hirschberg has engaged Engineer Hanson and crew to make a detailed survey of the route. This survey was started Thursday morning.

The advantages to the people along the line of the proposed road and to Falls City and Independence are enough to warrant them in giving all the aid and assistance possible.

The trade of that section will come here and our Board of Trade is entitled to credit for the work they are doing.

It is now almost up to the people who will be benefited to say whether they will assist or oppose the new road.

We've noticed that the Oregonian recommends carbolicum as a sure shot for bugs. Carbolicum is a wood preservative and as such is all right. It is good to kill bugs people ought to know it.

M. G. Flynn and L. B. Robbins, of Falls City, were in town Thursday.

Rev. W. S. Smith and wife are at Minute camp.

Mrs. W. G. Sparrow, of Vancouver, B. C., who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Price, returned home Monday.

Mrs. H. M. Lines is visiting in McMinnville.

Miss Alice Adams, of McMinnville, is visiting Miss Edith Lauer.

Miss Edythe Randall, who has been visiting L. Rice, has returned home.

A pleasant surprise party was given Miss Grace Jones at her home Thursday evening. The evening was spent in games and cards, after which delicious refreshments were served. Those present were: Misses Burton, Lela Herren, Grace Damon, Lela Robertson, Maude Brant, Mabel Wells, Grace and Kate Jones, Messrs. Lynch, Carl Herren, Louis Brant, George Jones, Claude Perry, Ernest Johnson, Glenn Butler.
