Mrs. Hoover's Cook Becomes an Ardent Hooverizer

IN ALL the land no housewife follows more closely the rulings of the United States food administration than does Mrs. Herbert C. Hoover, wife of the food administrator. The Hoover cook, who has a wide reputation in most exclusive circles of Washington, was one of the first converts to the conservation of food, and one of the most ardent. A prominent Washington woman remarked soon after the Hoover household was established in the national capital:

"You needn't tell me the Hoovers save food. I know the cook, and she couldn't be induced to economize."

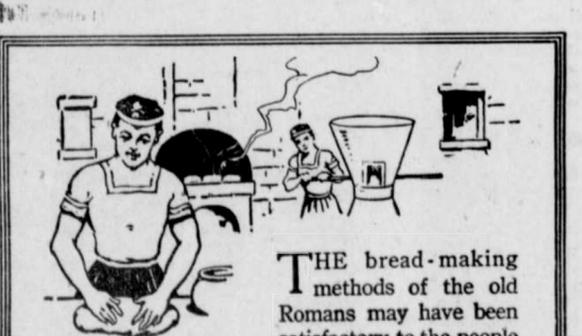

Nevertheless, after a time of sorrow and of stress of wounded professional pride the cook became under the direction and persuasion of Mrs. Hoover, as enthusiastic over producing delicious meals with the least possible outlay of wheat, meat, sugar and fats as the strictest "Hooverite" could wish.

Almost every day is meatless day with the Hoovers, poultry, sea food or occasionally game replacing the beef or other meats that may be shipped across the sea. The servants, of course, have to have meat oftener, but for the family perhaps once a week, generally less frequently, there is a roast for dinner and what is left over is carefully utilized in some form for luncheon the next day. Sometimes a chop is provided at that meal for the ten-year-old son, who is recovering from a recent illness. Meat is never bought for soups, which are made from vegetables or the parts of poultry not served—the wing tips, feet, neck and gizzard.

Not only are Tuesdays and Saturdays porkless days, but the other five days of the week as well, despite the confessed fondness of the food administrator for his breakfast bacon. Pork, either as ham, bacon, sausage, lard or in other forms, never enters the big red brick house on Massachusetts avenue, where the Hoovers are domiciled. For cooking various vegetable oils or other substitutes are used for lard and butter.

POSSIBILITY OF EASTER TRAGEDY

The daylight saving bill is expected to go into effect Sunday morning, March 31. That also happens to be Easter. There is little possibility that anyone will forget to push up the clock, for it would be an awful tragedy to walk into a church in a new spring outfit just as everybody else was walking out.—Kansas City Times.

THE bread-making methods of the old Romans may have been satisfactory to the people of their day, but such methods would not suit the fastidious taste of the people of this community at the present time.

does satisfy the people of this community because it is wholesome, is scientifically made in a sanitary bakery, and is everything that the best bread should be. It has the desired home flavor.

Quality and cleanliness are the twin mottoes of this bakery at all times.

WHO'S WHO in the WORLD

NEWSBOY TO RAILWAY HEAD

From newsboy to railway president. Such is the achievement of William P. Kenney, who has just become president of the Great Northern railway. Louis W. Hill, chairman of the board of directors, will continue as active as heretofore in the management of the railway system his father built.

Selling newspapers was the starting point of Kenney's career, back in the eighties. He progressed step by step, later becoming a Western Union messenger boy. The clicking of the telegraph instrument was a lure to him. He mastered the key and became an operator.

That opened the way for Kenney's railway career. He turned his attention to traffic and before he was forty became a recognized traffic authority. In 1912 Kenney was made vice president and traffic manager of the Great Northern. He then came into close executive association with James J. Hill and L. W. Hill, who had a high regard for the young man's keen knowledge of traffic affairs. From their youth up Louis W. Hill and William Kenney have been closely associated in railroad affairs, first as clerks and later in management.

New Rules for Stenographers in One War Office

ONE office of the war department doesn't believe in instructions savoring of red tape. So regulations have been evolved for stenographers. Greatly increased efficiency is expected to result. Here are the rules to be followed:

- 1—Conserve air by eliminating some of the unnecessary conversation.
- 2—Conserve shoe leather by remaining at your desk; remember you are supposed to be a stenographer, not a floorwalker.
- 3—If you're hungry, go out and get something to eat; don't hang around chewing the rag.
- 4—We have wheatless and meatless days; let's have feetless days. Keep your feet on the floor, not on your desk.
- 5—Don't acquire the saving-habit to such an extent that you go home with your pockets full of paper clips every night. Just because you write shorthand, don't think you have got to be light-fingered.
- 6—If you feel that you must whistle during office hours, please whistle something German, so that the rest of the office will have an excuse for dropping a typewriter on your head.
- 7—Any person or persons having as a part of their lunch limburger cheese will kindly adjourn to the roof until the ordeal is over. There is a strong reason for this.
- 8—If you feel that you must take home a typewriter now and then, please leave the desk. We can get new typewriters, but desks are hard to get.
- 9—Just because they are using a lot of ammunition in Europe, don't think that you have to powder your nose every ten minutes.
- 10—Make the world safe for democracy; stop throwing milk bottles out of the windows.
- 11—As Abraham Lincoln said in his famous Gettysburg speech: "Eight Hours a day for the man who works, Seven hours a day for the government clerks."
- 12—Save a loaf a week. Just because you have a crust, don't say you can loaf around this office, even if you are well bred. Don't come in here with a bun on, either.
