Old Time Fire Alarms. Fire alarms came into use in medieval times. It was the custom in many of the towns to have a watchman stationed on a high building whose duty it was to look for fires. As soon as he saw one he gave warning by blowing a horn, firing a gun or ringing a bell.

Your Eyes on the Goal. The runner who looks over his shoulder to see whether his rival is gaining on him, is pretty sure to lose the race. Keep your eye on the goal. The backward look means lost time, whatever sort of race you are running. The things behind you do not matter. All that concerns you is on ahead.

Probably of Some Age. Clarence was always doing things that brought exclamations of surprise from his mother. This seemed to puzzle the little fellow. One day he asked: "How old will I have to be, mother, before I quit doing things that you are surprised at?"

Notin's Never Perfect. The one big shortcoming of having Willie wash the dishes is that it doesn't get his necken ears clean, too.

Live in Extinct Volcano. In southern Tanzania is a mountain of considerable size called Dourat, which once upon a time was an active volcano. Bubbles of volcanic gases made it a veritable honeycomb of caves, which in these days are inhabited. In fact, the whole mountain is a city, a human anthill, densely populated.

Oxen the "Beast of Burden" in Brussels

Germany commandeered most of the horses in Brussels, Belgium, making it necessary to use oxen in the wagons. Picture shows ox in a city dust cart that was formerly drawn by a horse.

BREEDING CHICKENS ON COMMUNITY PLAN

In some communities the practice is followed of choosing one breed and sticking to it. There is the advantage of shipping. A crate of uniform size and breed looks well. A community can send a carload, and by shipping a car get higher prices and lower freight rate than when the individual ships. Then there is more interest in the breed which your neighbor is growing. The poultry crank enthuses his neighbors; he will persuade them to get a good poultry judge to come and go over their flocks. The community can afford the fifty to a hundred dollars this would probably cost for a good judge, where the individual might not be able to pay the bill. Poultry clubs and breed clubs are doing on a long-distance scale what the community can do near at hand. For example, the Rhode Island Red club has created a fund to give publicity to their breed. They have secured a secretary to look after their interests, and are enlisting all of their members in a publicity campaign. They tell them to "obtain and tabulate all facts favorable to Rhode Island Reds, such as high egg records, early maturity, vitality, etc., and give these facts, in the widest possible publicity. Check up on all egg contests and give publicity to any facts established that are favorable to the Rhode Island Reds. Secure in writing the opinions of government experts as to the merits of the Reds," etc., etc. We all remember the boom the White Orpingtons had several years ago through the extravagant advertising of one breeder, and the publicity he gave his customers' records as well as his own. There is profit in getting together and making yourself heard when things worth while are accomplished.

The London board of education has after many refusals sanctioned experiments in simplified spelling. Speaking on the subject at University college, Prof. Walter Ripman, chief inspector of London university, said: "It was necessary to have a code of spelling which would represent not dialects, but standard speech of the whole English speaking race. It was hoped that the United States government could be brought to co-operate with the British government in bringing this about."

Miss Walsh of Honeywell Road school, Battersn, where the experiment in simplified spelling is being made, said that learning to read in the simplified form was a much happier experience for a child than under the old method.

A number of Miss Walsh's pupils, of an average of six years of age, gave a demonstration of word building by the simplified method. All could read with facility both in the old and new form of spelling.

The Origin of "Blue Blood."

"Blue blood" appears to mean the blood of a fair skinned race as it strikes the eyes of a dark skinned people; in its Spanish form, sangre azul, it seems to have been first used to describe the blue veins on the fair skin of the foreign northern aristocratic classes of Spain.

Mother's Cook Book

Be diplomatic—a farmer out West kept himself supplied with coal by making faces at the engineer as the train went by.

A Few Choice Dishes. When meal time is taken at noon there is no dish which touches the spot like a nice hot soup.

Coconut Soup. The trouble of preparing this delicious soup will be swallowed and forgotten with the first taste. Cook two pounds of veal bones in two quarts of water added cold. When reduced to one quart add the chopped meat of one coconut and cook one-half hour. Strain and add the milk of the nut and a pint of cream. Reheat and thicken with a tablespoonful of flour and butter cooked together. Season with salt, cayenne and onion juice. When ready to serve pour over two beaten eggs.

Victoria's Favorite Soup. Remove the fat from a quart of water in which a chicken has been cooked. Season well with salt, pepper, onion juice and celery salt. Mash the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs, mix with half a cupful of bread crumbs, soaked in milk until soft. Chop white meat of chicken until it is fine as meal and stir it into the egg and bread crumb paste. Add a pint of hot cream, slowly, then the chicken liquor. Boil five minutes, add more seasonings, if too thin, add more crumbs. It should be a puree.

The most popular explanation of the origin of the expression "Everything is lovely and the goose hangs high," is this: That it comes from the southern country amusement known as "goose pulling." A goose, its neck carefully plucked and well greased, was hung by its feet to a branch of a tree. The men would ride past at a gallop, trying to catch it by the neck and pull its head off. The better the goose was in dodging the greater the fun. When the goose hung high, so that the competitors had to stand in their stirrups to grasp at it, the joy was greatest. Another suggested origin is that it refers to the fact that wild geese fly in clear weather; this explanation would change "hangs" to "honks."

Squaw Dish. As Indians are very fond of preparing this dish it has taken the name from them. Cut bacon in thin slices and cook until crisp, pour off half the fat from a quart of a pound of bacon and add a quart of corn, fresh from the cob is best, but canned will do. Stir until the corn is cooked if fresh; and thoroughly hot, if canned. Season with salt and pepper and serve.

Bake pears by dotting with bits of butter, add sugar, lemon juice and bake them while baking. Serve either hot or cold.
