CLUB WORK WILL START BOY ON ROAD TO SUCCESS IN PRODUCTION OF BEST POULTRY

A Meeting of a Typical Poultry Club.

That 'organized agricultural club work among boys and girls is something more than a contest which ends with the season, but a continuous, constructive piece of work which eventually leads the club members into the business of farming and home making is illustrated by the accomplishments of a poultry club member in Ver-

Work of Vermont Boy.

In 1912 John Alexander joined the Vermont Poultry club in spite of the opposition of members of his own famfly, and, in a number of instances, discouraging words from friends and neighbors who did not understand what club work meant to the American boy. He started with only a few settings of eggs, but two years later he was well on the road to success, for he had become the champion in his county in club work, having produced the best grade of birds and the most profit from his investment. In 1914 he exhibited some of his birds at the

The following year he became the champion poultry club member of his state and was sent to New York city to the National Education association to tell how he did his work and what he thought of it. The following year he again won the state championship. Reputation Spread.

By this time his reputation in the poultry industry had spread to other states and he was selling settings of eggs throughout New England direct to consumers, and had built up a trade in the sale of birds for breeding pur-

One year later, in 1917, he started out with a business of his own, using his own business cards, his own business stationery, and expanding his poultry plant two-fold. He became manager not only of his own poultry plant, which he developed rapidly, but found time to take a position as superintendent of the poultry farm at one of the state in-

WAY TO KEEP COUNTY ORGANIZATION ALIVE

Too Many Activities Are Liable to Result in Failure.

Some of Projects to Be Undertaken Include Road Improvement, Agricultural Fairs, Improved Breeds of Stock, Etc.

(Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture.)

One important thing to be borne in tinue to exist that does not have some definite plan of work and some definite purpose to accomplish. It should be remembered, however, that too many activities may result in failure. A few well-defined policies or purposes successfully carried to conclusion will mean permanency and success for these organizations. Those responsible for the county organization should lay their plans well into the future, and keep interest in the various local clubs active. Road improvement, county agricultural fairs, rural telephone systems, improved or consolidated schools, vocational education, standardized cotton and corn for the county, improved breeds of live stock especially adapted to local conditions, co-operative marketing, public entertainments, and social welfare are some of the projects being undertaken by county organizations. It is not believed to be advisable for a county to undertake more than two or three of these at a time, at least not the first season.

Whatever is undertaken should be done well before new projects are launched. Get the movement well under way and it will be carried forward by its own momentum. The hard work will come at the start. After it is started all you will have to do will be to direct it into the proper channels.

WATER SUPPLY IS IMPORTANT

There Should Be Plenty for Home and Barn and It Should Be as Handy as Possible.

The water supply is very important. Not only should there be plenty of water for the home and the barn, but it should be convenient. Nothing to Equal Them for Fattening or More Economical-Excellent for Horses.

In planting cowpeas with corn they are used mostly for pasture, especially for hogs. It is a question if anything is equal to them for fattening, or more economical. When properly cured for hay thefe is nothing better than cowpeas for dairy cows, and they also make excellent feed for horses. They are fine for silo, mixed with corn, but for this the running kinds, having the most foliage, are preferred.

SELECTION OF BEST VARIETIES OF SEED

Importance Is Indicated in Number of Experiments.

Variation of Yields Found at Different Western Stations With Wheat, Oats and Barley-Results of Experiments.

(Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture.)

The importance of selecting a crop variety that is suited to the section in which it is grown is indicated in a numat various field stations last year. In co-operative experiments at the Dickinson substation, North Dakota, a number of varieties of common wheat grown under similar conditions produced yields which varied from 19.4 bushels an acre to 11.3 bushels. The variations in yields of varieties of durum wheat were from 20.2 bushels an acre to 13.2 bushels. A wide variation was obtained in similar experi-49.5 bushels an acre to 19.8 bushels.

Barley showed a variation which ranged from 23.6 bushels an acre to 9.7 bushels.

At the Cheyenne field station in Wyoming varietal experiments with winter wheat gave yields which ranged from an average of 35.5 bushels an acre to 28.4 bushels; with spring wheat, 41.2 bushels to 15.5 bushels; with oats, 79.6 bushels to 37.8 bushels; with barley, 73.1 bushels to 41.4 bushels.

At the Nephi substation, in Utah, co-operative results with varieties of winter wheat showed a variation ranging from 23.3 bushels an acre to 2.2 bushels, and with spring wheat from 15.7 bushels to 6.3 bushels.

Similar experiments conducted in California with wheat showed a variation in yield ranging from 50 bushels an acre to 12.5 bushels. In a series of usually do not vary so widely as these yields of a single year, but it is generally found that certain varieties give better average yields than others and are therefore more profitable.

MAKE WAR ON INSECT PESTS

Rubbish, Fence Corners, Hedge Rows and Accumulations of Vegetation Should Be Cleaned Up.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

During spring much may be accomplished in the control of certain insects affecting cereal and forage crops. Many of these insects spend the winter in rubbish, in fence corners, along hedge rows, and in accumulations of dried vegetation. For this reason, these should be thoroughly cleaned up and burned in order to kill the insects hiding therein.

In the upper Mississippi basin west of the river grasshopper eggs are frequently laid in large numbers along ditch banks, in check rows, and in toreign one.—Shenstone. other limited uncultivated areas where they may be destroyed by disking thoroughly during the winter months. If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal ac-tivity. The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest ad-
