Miss Beatrice Thurston, at one time a resident of Independence, and the young lady who persuaded sundry citizens of Independence to sign up for its last Chautauqua, has announced her engagement to a Portland young man.

A story of pirates bold, of buried treasure, of a slacker who tried to evade government service by stealing a ship from a fine old sea captain, and a beautiful and spirited little girl who saved the situation—these are the chief features of "Such a Little Pirate," Lila Lee's second Paramount picture, which will be shown at the Isis on Friday night, May 30, and also Fatty Arbuckle in "The Rough House."

Corvallis Courier: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd V. Bell of Salem, accompanied their son, Kirk Vernon, to Corvallis the first of the week and are visiting at the home of the lad's grand parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. R. N. Bell. While here, Dr. Bell was talking to Coach Hargiss to see if his grandson might have a chance on the Varsity football squad next year. The coach said he would be given a tryout if he got out for practice. The coach then asked about the age of the young man and nearly fainted when Dr. Bell told him the boy was 26 days old.

Monmouth Herald: Miss Williams, Critic of the Third and Fourth Grades of the Independence Training Schools, spoke at Dayton last week upon "Teaching as a Life Work". The report comes to the Normal that it was one of the most convincing, thoughtful and inspirational talks ever delivered before a Dayton audience.
